1	PROCEEDINGS
2	THE CLERK: All rise.
3	THE COURT: Good morning. Please be seated.
4	We're here this morning for a hearing in Arcapita
5	Bank and so before we begin, let me get appearances from
6	folks who expect to speak at the hearing this morning, in no
7	particular order.
8	MR. LEBLANC: Good morning, Your Honor, Andrew
9	Leblanc of Milbank Tweed Hadley & McCloy on behalf of the
10	reorganized Arcapita, joined by my colleagues, Nicholas
11	Bassett and Lena Mandel.
12	THE COURT: All right. Good morning. And who's
13	going to be arguing the other side of the motions that we
14	have in front of us today?
15	MS. ADLER: Your Honor, Lani Adler and John Bicks,
16	K&L Gates for the defendants in the adversary proceedings
17	against Bahrain Islamic Bank and Tadhamon Capital.
18	THE COURT: All right. Thank you.
19	MR. SKAPOF: Good morning, Your Honor, Marc
20	Skapof, Baker Hostetler with my colleague Regina Griffin and
21	Jim Day, arguing for the Baeshen claimants.
22	THE COURT: All right. So before we get to those
23	motions, there were a few other things on the calendar, so
24	take it away.
25	MS MANDEL: Good morning Your Honor

Page 7 1 THE COURT: Good morning. 2 MS. MANDEL: Lena Mandel, Milbank Tweed Hadley & 3 McCloy, on behalf of the reorganized debtors. We do have a couple of claims related matters 4 5 today. The first matters on the agenda have been adjourned, and at the time we filed the agenda, Your Honor, we didn't 7 have the date for the April omnibus hearing, so we adjourned 8 them without a date certain. 9 But with respect to matter number one, omnibus 10 objection number two, with respect to claim 255, we would 11 like to adjourn it to April 30 at 11 a.m. 12 THE COURT: All right. 13 MS. MANDEL: And with respect to the third omnibus objection, this is one handled by Gibson Dunn, so I don't 14 15 have a date for that. 16 THE COURT: All right. That's fair enough. 17 MS. MANDEL: Thank you, Your Honor. 18 Then we have an uncontested objection to claim 19 number 254, filed by Joint Venture, Foreign Van Ness 20 Construction (ph) and Muhr and Roberts (ph). 21 There was a settlement agreement as we explained 22 in our objection that the debtors entered into post-petition 23 with the claimant. They never got Court approval, so it's 24 not a binding settlement agreement, but based on the review 25 of its terms by FTI, our financial consultants, we believe

Page 8 1 that the terms of the settlement are reasonable, and we're 2 willing to abide by them. 3 So they filed a proof of claim based on the amount 4 set forth as the settlement amount in that agreement, which 5 was equivalent to slightly over $4 million. However, there 6 was one point in the agreement that dealt with a provisional 7 amount, which was slightly over a million dollars that related to work that had not been performed at the time, and 8 9 on information belief that it had never been performed. 10 So we believe that the settlement amount should be 11 reduced by that number. And when we tried to contact the 12 claimant to resolve this consensually, but they -- we never 13 got any response. So we were forced to file a formal 14 objection. 15 As Your Honor can see, we served the objection on 16 them, we did not receive any response. And so we're asking 17 to have that claim reduced to $2,979,419 --18 THE COURT: All right. 19 MS. MANDEL: -- and 10 cents. 20 THE COURT: So let me make sure I understand this. 21 You want me to essentially approve the settlement agreement, 22 but then back out of the settlement agreement certain funds 23 that are the subject of the objection? 24 MS. MANDEL: That is correct, Your Honor. Well, 25 we're not formally asking to approve the settlement

1	agreement. We're asking to reduce the proof of claim
2	THE COURT: Claim.
3	MS. MANDEL: and allow it in the amount
4	THE COURT: Consistent with a modified settlement
5	agreement.
6	MS. MANDEL: That is correct, Your Honor.
7	THE COURT: I understand, all right. And they
8	were noticed, properly noticed with
9	MS. MANDEL: That's right. We filed affidavit of
LO	service.
L1	THE COURT: All right. Anybody wish to be heard
L2	in connection with that claim objection?
L3	(No response)
L 4	THE COURT: All right. I did take a look at it as
L5	well as the settlement agreement to try to put the pieces
L 6	together, and I had understood the way you understood it
L7	here this morning, but it's nice to confirm it, and I will
L8	grant the claim objection. And I think you're right, that I
L9	$\mathtt{don't}$ need to address the settlement, as the claim objection
20	really sets the proper figure.
21	MS. MANDEL: Thank you, Your Honor.
22	THE COURT: And so if you'd submit an order on
23	that.
24	MS. MANDEL: Thank you very much, we will.
25	THE COURT: Thank you.

MS. MANDEL: Okay. The next matter is motion under Rule 9019 seeking approval of the settlement with the Thronson Parties.

As Your Honor may recall, there were a lot of different litigation surrounding the sale by Falcon Gas

Search Company, debtor of the Nortex (ph) assets, that was one of them, filed in Texas state court by former employees who were holding stock options.

And they alleged that, you know, they were not -they were deprived of the opportunity of exercising those stock options in connection with the sale. So they filed a suit seeking damages close to $2 million.

We finally were able to consensually resolve those claims, and we are seeking approval of the settlement, which provides that Falcon will pay these parties $190,000 for which there will be -- have the Texas lawsuit dismissed with prejudice and grant debtor's wide release, very broad release.

And we believe that this is a very good settlement for Falcon's estate. You know, we're settling $2 million of a claim for $190,000, where the settlement allowed the plan to be confirmed, as with respect to Falcon and the Falcon creditors will now -- their coverage will be enhanced. So we're seeking approval of the settlement.

The only item in the settlement agreement that we're asking to modify is the settlement -- there were -Thronson Parties filed numerous proofs of claim, and they were objected to on the fourth omnibus objection, which obviously now resolved. And the stipulation -- the settlement agreement provides that once the payment is made, a joint stipulation will be filed withdrawing those claims.

We believe that's unnecessarily cumbersome and unnecessary, so we're asking Your Honor, and we included it in the proposed order that once the payment is made under the settlement agreement three days after that, all the claims will be deemed automatically withdrawn, and we will withdraw the pending fourth omnibus objection.

THE COURT: Well, I agree with you it's probably unnecessary, but I confess that I'm not anxious to start approving settlement agreements, where you give you me a settlement agreement and say we want you to approve it, but we want you to change a part of it.

I can see -- again, this seems fairly uncontroversial here, but I could see how that notion could lead to some very unfortunate and confusing requests and results, so I confess I'm not a big fan of that.

The other one I think is different, in that, you noticed -- it's noticed in a way -- well, the two of them together raise some concerns. I think I'm willing to let you go on the first one, but the second one, I think it's a

1	very administerial act that can be accomplished fairly
2	easily without much expense at all.
3	MS. MANDEL: That's fine, Your Honor. We will
4	THE COURT: If it's in the settlement agreement,
5	that's what the parties contemplated
6	MS. MANDEL: Well, my only concern was that there
7	are 36 of them, but that's okay, we'll figure it out.
8	THE COURT: Well, you can tell them that in the
9	settlement agreement they agreed to do it so
10	MS. MANDEL: Right.
11	THE COURT: the judge understands that they
12	will do it and if you have
13	MS. MANDEL: That's fine, Your Honor, that's not a
14	problem. We'll modify the proposed order and we'll be then
15	seeking just approval of the settlement agreement as is.
16	THE COURT: All right. Anyone wish to be heard on
17	the request to approve this settlement?
18	(No response)
19	THE COURT: All right. Hearing no objection, I
20	will approve the settlement consistent with the settlement
21	agreement as we just discussed under Rule 9019 as satisfying
22	that requirement, and certainly within the more than the
23	lowest range of reasonableness and the factors identified by
24	the Court in Iridium.
25	MS. MANDEL: Thank you, Your Honor.

Page 13 1 The last claims related matter on the agenda was 2 listed as a contested matter, and was relating to claim 3 number 577 from the ninth omnibus objection to claims. 4 Since we filed the agenda, the claimant has withdrawn its 5 proof of claim, so there's no need to go forward on a 6 contested matter. 7 And I understand that the claimant is on the phone 8 and wishes to say something. 9 THE COURT: All right. Who's on the phone? 10 (No response) 11 THE COURT: Maybe they're in listen only capacity. 12 MS. MANDEL: Okay. Maybe they're just listening. 13 THE COURT: It's all right. 14 MS. MANDEL: So that's --15 THE COURT: All right. Well, I appreciate them 16 addressing it in a timely way so we can have the record 17 clear for the hearing. And in light of that, it doesn't 18 look like we need to do anything as to that claim. 19 That's correct, thank you very much. MS. MANDEL: 20 THE COURT: Thank you very much. 21 MS. MANDEL: Thank you, Your Honor. 22 THE COURT: All right. I believe that allows us 23 to move on to the motions part of the program. I thought 24 that it'd probably made sense to do the Baeshen motion first 25 unless --

Page 14 1 MR. LEBLANC: Whichever the Court prefers, Your 2 Honor, it's -- I'm arguing all three of them so whatever the 3 Court's pleasure is. THE COURT: All right. So you're stuck --5 MR. LEBLANC: So I'll --THE COURT: -- either way. 7 MR. LEBLANC: I will now stand and argue. Let me just switch books if I could, Your Honor. 8 9 THE COURT: Absolutely and we'll give a second for 10 the folks to come up on the other side on that motion. 11 All right, proceed. 12 MR. LEBLANC: May it please the Court, Your Honor, 13 Andrew Leblanc of Milbank Tweed Hadley & McCloy on behalf of 14 the reorganized debtors. I want to tell the Court at the outset that I'm 15 16 going to say this with respect to both motions that I'm 17 going to argue. The motions are extraordinary we believe, 18 in the context of the bankruptcy case for different reasons, 19 but I don't want Your Honor to think that I saw that about 20 every motion that I argue. It's just these two or the three 21 but two of them are really the same, are truly 22 extraordinary. 23 And I'm going to deal with this one obviously and 24 we'll deal with the other one when we get to that. But this 25 motion, Your Honor, in its simplest terms, seeks to gut the confirmation order that the Court already entered.

Now, the confirmation order that the Court entered dealt in relevant part with two critical elements. The two elements that are necessary for the complainant's claims.

The first is the plan in as clear terms as one could possibly do, dictated what the assets of the estate were, which were property of the estate. The Court determined that, and I have demonstratives here, Your Honor, that show, and if the Court would like me to I'm happy to walk through where those definitions are.

But the definition of property of the estate, as reflected in the disclosure statement as confirmed by the plan, includes all of the scheduled assets. There's a commingled amount of cash, constituting $147 million of cash that are designated on the schedules. The Court then found that to be property of the estate.

The complainants seek a determination from the Court that that was never property of the estate. And astonishingly, and what again I think is truly extraordinary is at no point in time until they filed their complaint after the plan had gone effective, did they raise their hand and say, we contest, we dispute, we even want to reserve our rights as to whether or not that particular piece of property is property of the estate.

And what makes that particular element of their claim even more astonishing, is that in the context of this plan, someone else did exactly that. Someone else raised their hand, said I have a dispute as to whether or not my particular piece of property is property of the estate. And what happened? That particular creditor, Mr. Nazer (ph) got a reservation of rights specific to him, allowing him to preserve that argument. Had the Baeshens done the same, one of two things would've happened.

Either it would've been concluded that we could include them in a reservation of rights, or alternatively, the dispute would've been resolved. But fundamentally, because they didn't make themselves known at any point in time prior to the filing of their complaint, nobody had any reason to think that there was a contest to that.

And I think that Mr. Nazer came before the Court, or came at least before the debtors filed an objection and had the reservation, may explain it was in the contemplation of somebody that that might be an argument that one could make. And that reservation of rights, it's reflected in the plan as repeated in our papers is clear that it relates to Mr. Nazer.

Now, that's -- that element alone, that's fatal to their claim because --

THE COURT: Well, let me ask whether -- there's a res judicata aspect of this.

Page 17 1 MR. LEBLANC: Correct. 2 THE COURT: But there's also what I hear in your 3 comments, also it's almost a laches kind of argument that by 4 waiting, and I guess that it's tied in with the res judicata 5 meaning that proceeding went forward and you didn't 6 challenge it. Are you making any sort of separate laches 7 argument? 8 No, I don't think, Your Honor, MR. LEBLANC: No. 9 that there's -- well, let me be clear, in a motion to 10 dismiss we're not. It's a declarable -- the constructive 11 trust is an equitable doctrine to the extent that they 12 wanted to assert a constructive trust. 13 We would argue a laches argument. That's probably a summary judgment argument. The problem for them, Your 14 15 Honor, is they have to get past the motion to dismiss on the 16 basis of res judicata. 17 THE COURT: Right. 18 MR. LEBLANC: And the Court having determined this in the confirmation order and in confirming the plan, they 19 20 don't get out of the starting gate, and we don't have to 21 raise affirmative defenses to inequitable relief like a 22 constructive trust that they seek, like affirmative defenses like laches, because they simply don't get out of the 23 24 starting gate. 25 THE COURT: You mentioned the $147 million in

Page 18 1 cash, how many other folks are in the same position as these 2 plaintiffs and the objecting party for purposes of the plan are there? I mean, how much of that cash are we talking? 3 MR. LEBLANC: Your Honor, I think -- the number --5 the dollar amount is $320 million, so even though there's only 147 million because what's important for the Court to 7 remember is these are unrestricted investment accounts that 8 were deposited. 9 THE COURT: Right. 10 MR. LEBLANC: The company could do with them what 11 they chose. The 147 million is simply what was available --12 THE COURT: At that time. 13 MR. LEBLANC: -- what was in bank accounts at that 14 time. 15 THE COURT: Was the balance but --16 MR. LEBLANC: It was the balance, because the 17 money was obviously commingled, which in and of itself would 18 defeat if they get past the summary judgment stage, would 19 defeat a constructive trust argument. But again, we're not 20 at that point. 21 But it's 230 million, and I understand it's about 22 60 claimants who would be in exactly the same position. 23 other words, who have URIA or RIA accounts, deposited money, and could come before the Court if there's no restriction, 24 25 if the confirmation order meant nothing, could come before the Court and contest or contend that they could assert a constructive trust.

Now, I talked about the designation by the Court of the assets. There's a second and independent fatal flaw to their assertion, and that is that the Baeshens in the plan, one of the things that occurs, is they are designated, they're concluded to be creditors, based upon their URIA accounts.

And separately with respect to their rights offering account, there's a separately classified group of claimants and the Baeshens fall into both of those categories.

Now, the disclosure statement sets forth plainly the classification of those claims. The Court by its determination concludes that all claimants within those categories are similarly situated, and all claimants get the treatment that's provided for in the plan.

Now, the treatment that's provided for in the plan is demonstrably different than what the Baeshens are contending they're entitled to now, which is just take their money and go home.

Now, why is that so critical, Your Honor, because that is a second independent decision that the Court makes in the context of the confirmation of the plan. That is, that prohibits them from now asserting that their claims against the estate are anything other than those that are categorized as unsecured claims against Arcapita Bank entitled to the distributions that are provided for in the plan.

So, Your Honor, as to either of those issues, and with respect to the claims themselves, they filed -- it's not just that they were scheduled, they also filed proofs of claim. They filed proofs of claim, so they came to the Court, and they came to the debtors and said, we believe ourselves to be claimants. It had a boilerplate reservation of rights that didn't mention anything about constructive trust. But it has -- they came to the Court and said, we are claimants.

The debtors then proceeded, and the debtors with the help of the plan sponsors and the committee proceeded with proposing a plan, having a disclosure statement approved, months later having that plan approved, months after that, having that plan go effective and be consummated, all the while with the understanding that the Baeshens just like they said they were, were claimants properly categorized in the two claims -- in the two categories of claims.

Now -- so, Your Honor, that's an independent reason why the Court must dismiss their claims on the doctrine -- under the doctrine of res judicata.

And it's clear, Your Honor, the doctrine of resjudicata has very powerful effect. But it has even more powerful effect in a bankruptcy case than it does in a general commercial litigation. The reason for that is the importance of finality, and we talk about this in our papers.

And I think we've just mentioned, Your Honor, the importance of finality in this particular case is extraordinary, given the fact that the Baeshens are in no different position than anyone else. Their claims are no different than the other URIA, and for the reasons we talked about, the -- just the sheer volume of money, it would fundamentally alter the context of this case.

Were the Court now to say that they can contend that they can just take their money out in full. Well, the plan that the Court confirmed just falls apart in that context. Not because of their 3 million, but because of all of the money that can come out from the C people that are identically situated.

So, Your Honor, we think that the basis to dismiss this claim is just absolutely clear. It's a blatant, blatant collateral attack on this Court's order. It doesn't seek in any respect to comply with 1144, there's no allegation that there was fraud, that they were misled, that they didn't understand what was happening to them, no

Page 22 1 allegation of that whatsoever. Instead, they just ask the 2 Court to ignore the orders that it enters. 3 The Court should reject that and should dismiss these claims. 4 5 THE COURT: All right. 6 MR. LEBLANC: Unless the Court has any questions. 7 THE COURT: Yeah, my question is what do you make 8 of, and I'll put this in a broad brush of the case that they cite dealing with property of the estate, and the idea that 9 10 that's separate and apart, is your answer one about sort of 11 the timing of raising those issues or the substance of it, 12 those cases being different than this circumstance? 13 MR. LEBLANC: I would say it's both, Your Honor. 14 Certainly the timing has an enormous impact. The second is 15 the substance of those. 16 The issue that was raised in those cases was an 17 argument that a particular piece of property couldn't become 18 property of the estate pursuant to the confirmation order, 19 when there was a dispute, a known dispute about that prior 20 to it. 21 In other words, the confirmation order isn't the 22 place to adjudicate disputes as to whether something is property of the estate. However, the confirmation order is 23 24 the place to determine what is property of the estate. 25 The schedules here have been out for more than a year. The disclosure statement have been out for several months before the confirmation hearing, and that was February -- it was filed in February, confirmation hearing in June.

And there wasn't a dispute about this being property of the estate. And just think about the floodgates that open, Your Honor. If somebody can -- if there can be no dispute and the Court can say, this is all listed in the disclosure statement as property of the estate, I find it to be property of the estate, and then someone can come in and say afterwards, all of the debtor's property, I now dispute whether it's property of the estate. And that's effectively -- that is what they're doing.

And so, Your Honor, it's the absence of any suggestion that there was a dispute. And it's the fact of the Court's conclusion that these -- this was, in fact, property of the estate. Something that as it relates to this debtor, and Your Honor knows that this debtor throughout much of its -- much of the course of this case, it was not a debtor flush with cash.

And this plan, which is paying creditors pennies on the dollar at the Arcapita Bank level, is not a plan that's like a close to full play, where you could go -- get away with giving away a few million bucks or even $300 million. That is not the case.

This is a debtor, upon reorganization, that has an estimated reorganization value of 1.3 billion. And what they're suggesting is that $320 million of cash could be contended to be not property of the estate.

And I think that's the distinction with those cases, Your Honor, is there was no dispute whatsoever in this case as to whether or not this was property of the state, when the Court ordered that to be the case. And for that reason, it has res judicata effect.

THE COURT: So if it was raised, I would imagine the options would be at the confirmation hearing to do one of two things. One is to say, we can reserve that right, as you did with the one party that raised it, because we can afford to go ahead --

MR. LEBLANC: Uh-huh.

THE COURT: -- without that money. Or two, this is a game changer and we need to litigate it now so the confirmation hearing now becomes a hearing, an evidentiary hearing or whatever it is on what's in and what's out.

MR. LEBLANC: Absolutely, and that's what I mentioned at the outset. Had they raised this, Your Honor, we had those two choices. We could've done effectively what would be comparable to a quiet title action. To get anybody who claims they had a -- anyone who claims they have a property interest in the debtor's assets come forward and say that you do.

Nobody was making a claim except for one person, and as to that person, and for exactly the reason Your Honor said, the plan can go forward with a reservation with respect to Mr. Nazer. That's okay, we can do that. We can't do it with respect to everybody else.

And just think about the impossible position.

Your Honor, I know, just confirmed American Airlines. If somebody could come in today and say, well, six of those planes, I have a property right in those, I'm asserting a constructive trust over them, after the plan has been confirmed upon which the ownership of those planes was just part of it because nobody contested it, and presumably Your Honor's orders, confirmation orders there say that the planes that are listed on their schedules are property of that estate.

If somebody could come in afterwards and just say, well, now I'm going to assert that that is my property, it just doesn't work. And exactly what Your Honor said, had they raised this at any time, any time prior to the res judicata order in this case, the confirmation order, we would've resolved it in one of two ways.

Either, we would've carved them out if it was acceptable to do that for all the plan sponsors with the recognition that there was the risk that $3 million would be declared later not to be property of the estate, or we would've said, we've got to figure this out. And you could figure it out in one of two ways. You can either change the plan to react to that, or you can litigate the question and resolve it at that point.

We were never given that option, and the Court was never given that option. And instead what the Court did is entered the order and that becomes -- that has res judicata effect.

I think any conclusion to the contrary, Your Honor, would be astonishing, and could wreak havoc in every bankruptcy case. Because then what you -- you put the onus on debtors and the creditors who put plans together with debtors, to quiet title to all the assets that are on the debtor's schedule. And there's been no suggestion whatsoever that there's any dispute as to whether or not they own it.

You also, you also put the onus on debtors to go through what can be tens or hundreds or thousands of claims to say, well, does anybody have some generic reservation of rights, we have to go and litigate those claim objections to resolve any generic reservations of right. Because somebody who filed a proof of claim, who was classified as a particular creditor, who was provided for a plan treatment, would be free to come out -- come in after the plan was

	Page 27
1	confirmed and consummated and say, I just don't agree with
2	the order that the Court entered, and I'm free to contest
3	the treatment of my claims, the claims that I've asserted in
4	the plan.
5	Your Honor, that is that would be an
6	extraordinary outcome from this Court, and it would turn
7	bankruptcy, you know, up on its head.
8	So, Your Honor, we would ask that the Court to
9	dismiss the claims of the Baeshens without with
LO	prejudice
L1	THE COURT: All right.
L2	MR. LEBLANC: and without any further action
L3	from the debtors. Thank you, Your Honor.
L 4	THE COURT: Thank you.
L5	MR. SKAPOF: Good morning, Your Honor
L 6	THE COURT: Good morning.
L 7	MR. SKAPOF: Marc Skapof from Baker Hostetler
L8	on behalf of the Baeshens, and you'll excuse me because I'm
L 9	battling a cold, so if you have trouble hearing me
20	THE COURT: That's all right, you and many other
21	people.
22	MR. SKAPOF: please let me know.
23	As a second indulgence, we're going to address the
24	arguments that Mr. Leblanc made, but I'd like to sort of
25	just take this one on to sort of frame what we think the issue is.

THE COURT: Certainly, however you'd like to proceed.

MR. SKAPOF: Right. And just as a matter of sort of procedure, we're not here on a motion. We're here on a complaint for declaratory relief, and we think that's important because, you know, the debtors have raised one -- excuse me, reorganized debtors have raised one affirmative defense to the claims that we've put at issue, the allegations we put at issue, which we're all going to assume, you know, are true for today.

And what we are talking about here is the Baeshens invested a total of a little more than $12 million with the debtors. The Baeshens accept under governing Bahraini law that 75 percent of that $12 million, the debtors had an interest in that. And we do not contest the treatment of the debt Class 5 claims or the Class A claims as to the money that we believe under Bahraini law title passed or the debtors had an interest in.

So we're talking about $3 million and change carved out of that 12 million. So to begin with, with the 147 that the debtors are using as a number, one, I think it's improper that on a motion to dismiss, they're essentially talking about a bunch of claimants that are not in our complaint.

Page 29 1 Our complaint specifically --2 THE COURT: No, but it goes to the notion of what 3 this has to do with the plan, right? And so the argument 4 has been made that it's res judicata because of the plan, 5 and I was just trying to get a sense of where these kinds of 6 funds fit into the plan. And I certainly can get that 7 information by going back and looking at the plan. I'm just trying to get a -- sort of a short thumbnail --8 9 MR. SKAPOF: No, no. 10 THE COURT: -- sketch from folks who have already 11 done that work --12 MR. SKAPOF: Sure. 13 THE COURT: -- as to what the plan provides for 14 and what the claims would be and, you know, is it central to 15 the plan. 16 MR. SKAPOF: Understood, Your Honor, and I think 17 the point I make to that, and then I'm going to sort of 18 circle back to the sort of bigger points that we want to 19 make is, the pot of assets available for distribution to 20 creditors is distinct from what the debtor holds that may or 21 may not be there. 22 So all that 147 --23 THE COURT: How -- I'm not following you on that. 24 MR. SKAPOF: If I put down or disclose I've got 25 $147 million and we go back to Schedule B where that money's

Page 30 1 listed, it just lists a bunch of bank accounts. 2 way any particular person would know that their assets were 3 in those bank accounts or anything else. 4 So all the debtor is basically saying is, and 5 again, by the definitions in the plan, their definition is 6 assets, assets revested in the reorganized debtor. 7 definition of assets is property that's property of the estate under 541, which we contest, the language does fall 8 9 or on the schedules, but the case we cite in our papers, In 10 Re Toni (ph) says, just because you put something down on a 11 schedule, if it's not yours, it doesn't make it yours. 12 THE COURT: But let me just step back from the 13 sort of bankruptcy speak --14 MR. SKAPOF: Uh-huh. 15 THE COURT: -- that we all engage in, and to a 16 more generalist perspective. 17 MR. SKAPOF: Uh-huh. THE COURT: Your client, and I assume other folks 18 in similar circumstances, after all this was an investment 19 20 bank --21 MR. SKAPOF: Uh-huh. 22 THE COURT: -- invested money with the debtors. And the debtors had that money, that's why you filed a proof 23 24 of claim to say you owe us money, it's pretty clear that 25 whatever's left of that money, right, because they filed for

Page 31 1 bankruptcy --2 MR. SKAPOF: Uh-huh. 3 THE COURT: -- because they're in financial 4 distress, that the idea is to say, well, here's everything we've got, all the assets we have, and we're going to 5 6 distribute them. 7 So I understand parsing needs to be done as to the 8 plan and the specifics, but how could your client not know 9 that the money that was invested by it and everybody else 10 would be part -- whatever is left is the assets that are 11 going to be divvied up? MR. SKAPOF: Certainly, Your Honor, and I can 12 13 answer that, and it's also based on the allegations in our 14 complaint. Our client placed money under certain 15 agreements, there's two agreements at issue here, because 16 these are a family one -- one of the agreements that one of 17 the family members has and slightly different in terms of the choice of law provision. And our theory under our 18 19 complaint is, is that initial investment under the governing 20 Bahraini law, which governs here. I don't think anyone 21 would disagree on a Buttner (ph) analysis, this is the law 22 that determines the property interest, that money until it 23 was deployed as we use in our complaint, that is used for 24 investment purposes, title remained with the claimant.

We filed a claim for the full amount --

Page 32 THE COURT: Yeah, but we're getting into the 1 2 merits though of your argument. 3 MR. SKAPOF: No. But I agree, but I think I'm 4 addressing your point is, is that the 147 just because some 5 -- the number is there, it doesn't -- you can't tell if it's 6 including money that under the governing law isn't property 7 of the estate. And under the definitions in the plan of 8 assets non-property of the estate is already carved out of 9 that. 10 The definition in the plan, and it all talks about 11 assets is, property that's property under 541 or on the 12 schedule. 13 THE COURT: But do you have anything specific that you can point to in the plan that says that these kind of --14 15 these kinds of funds -- I mean, they're an investment bank, 16 so people give them money to invest. 17 I mean, isn't this the heart --MR. SKAPOF: Yes, Your Honor. 18 19 THE COURT: -- of what they were doing? 20 MR. SKAPOF: Yeah, but what we're saying, Your 21 Honor --22 THE COURT: And so it's the heart of the creditor 23 body and the heart of the assets? 24 MR. SKAPOF: Well, no, because we're -- what we're 25 saying, Your Honor, is we are a creditor for 75 percent of

Page 33 1 the money we did, and we agree the plan binds that. 2 You keep on positing an example of, didn't you 3 deposit money with an investment bank, and I don't want to go too much into the merits, but it does inform the answer 4 5 to your question, so you know, if you'll indulge me --6 THE COURT: When you say you deposited money but 7 you retained the -- some of that money, nonetheless, even 8 though you gave it to the debtors was still yours --9 MR. SKAPOF: Yes, right. 10 THE COURT: -- under Bahraini law? 11 MR. SKAPOF: What we're saying is, is we didn't 12 deposit money with an investment bank, like I would go and 13 give money to Goldman Sachs here. We gave money to a 14 Mudarabah bank that's regulated under Islamic banking 15 statute and is governed by Bahraini law as informed by 16 Sharia law. 17 So we would never take the position that that 18 initial deposit of the money or whatever you want to call 19 it, placement, made that -- let the debtor own that money. 20 The debtor did make further --THE COURT: But is there anything in the plan --21 22 MR. SKAPOF: Yes, Your Honor. THE COURT: -- that carves -- I understand you've 23 24 cited the general --25 MR. SKAPOF: Uh-huh.

Page 34 1 THE COURT: -- notion that not -- this doesn't 2 address non-property, but is there anything in there that addresses your -- these kinds of bank accounts? I'm just --3 MR. SKAPOF: Yeah, I can --5 THE COURT: Because what you're asking, I mean, 6 it's pretty clear, you are asking to undo the plan. 7 MR. SKAPOF: No, no, I would fundamentally 8 disagree with that, Your Honor, because, and let me explain, 9 and you know, people can respond to that. 10 We are making an argument based on our agreements, 11 which again, we have two different agreements, and the fact 12 that some portion of our money, about 25 percent was not 13 deployed, there is nothing in the plan, and there's no 14 evidence in the record here, because you know, they're just 15 saying what's in the plan but they're not introducing 16 evidence that the agreements were all these people are the 17 same, whether their money was deployed or not, or anything 18 else. 19 So it's completely speculative at this point, and 20 we're on a motion to dismiss. If that's the case, let's 21 have discovery on it, and they can come back and make the 22 argument. 23 THE COURT: Well, let me -- if the 147 million is 24 in a bank account for entities that are investment banks, 25 what else would the money be?

Case 1:15-cv-03828-GBD Document 16-2 Filed 07/16/15 Page 38 of 219 Page 35 1 MR. SKAPOF: But, Your Honor, as alleged in our 2 complaint, the money is in a specific type of account, and then some of that money was then, under the agreements, we 3 acknowledge that the agreements say Arcapita had the 4 5 discretion to invest the money. 6 Again, if you go back to the complaint, our theory 7 is, under Bahraini law, the initial placement with the bank in the first account title does not pass. Once the debtor 8 9 invests that money --10 THE COURT: No, I understand. 11 MR. SKAPOF: -- title did. Right. So -- but what 12 I'm saying is --13 THE COURT: I understand the theory --14 MR. SKAPOF: -- is that number, we can't tell what 15 it's referring to. And if you ask me, I want to turn to the 16 plan provisions because you asked me about that. 17 The first thing we would do is look at the actual 18 definitions in the plan because it's not boilerplate to 19 define assets, because that's fundamentally part of what the 20 plan does. And assets again include only property of the estate, and there's a case that says, just because you put it on the schedules it doesn't.

So while I acknowledge that the reorganized debtors are saying we're claiming something extraordinary or astonishing, because it has sort of fundamental impacts on

23

1	bankruptcy, I'd argue on the opposite side that we've cited
2	cases, and the debtors haven't cited any to the contrary
3	that say when a piece of property is not property of the
4	estate, it can't be turned into property of the estate under
5	a plan. The
6	THE COURT: I understand that
7	MR. SKAPOF: Right.
8	THE COURT: but why wasn't this raised at the
9	sometime before the plan
LO	MR. SKAPOF: Right.
L1	THE COURT: was confirmed so that a bankruptcy
L2	court can do
L3	MR. SKAPOF: Uh-huh.
L 4	THE COURT: what it has to do? There are all
L5	sorts of cases that have issues, that say we can't confirm a
L 6	plan until
L 7	MR. SKAPOF: Uh-huh.
L 8	THE COURT: we know X, and so, Judge, you're
L 9	not going to like this, but we need to take up two weeks in
20	June
21	MR. SKAPOF: Uh-huh.
22	THE COURT: or whatever it is to have a hearing
23	on X because that is the fundamental issue that needs to be
24	resolved?
25	MR. SKAPOF: And I'm yeah. And I knew you were

1	going to ask this question, and I'm actually I thought it
2	would be the very first question you would ask me before I
3	even introduced myself, so now that we're dealing with it.
4	THE COURT: All right.
5	MR. SKAPOF: Now, clearly as a prudential matter,
6	our client would've been better served to raise this at the
7	time. However, our argument is, that just because it was
8	prudent at one time it's not foreclosed now.
9	And Mr. Leblanc mentioned the Nazer carve-out and
10	how it's exclusive to him, and they cite for that
11	proposition, Justice Scalia's dissent in a case that has
12	nothing to do with bankruptcy and a secondary source using
13	sort of a cannon of catchatory (ph) construction.
14	THE COURT: Well, but I'll tell you
15	MR. SKAPOF: Yeah.
16	THE COURT: my take on that
17	MR. SKAPOF: Uh-huh.
18	THE COURT: is how can I allow carve-outs
19	are a particular thing
20	MR. SKAPOF: Uh-huh.
21	THE COURT: in bankruptcy. And they are
22	different than, you know, district court
23	MR. SKAPOF: Uh-huh.
24	THE COURT: litigation, it's a very different
25	world. If I start saying one person's carve-out is a

1	universal carve-out, then nobody knows what the plan is
2	giving away or not.
3	MR. SKAPOF: Agreed, Your Honor.
4	THE COURT: I mean, how can I do that?
5	MR. SKAPOF: But in this case, the argument that
6	was raised by Mr. Nazer said, I don't think this is property
7	of the estate, I
8	THE COURT: But that happens all the time.
9	MR. SKAPOF: No, no, no, I understand. And he
10	said it was held in trust and the debtors in their briefs
11	initially said, look, this isn't even a confirmation issue,
12	and if it's not covered by the plan or the order, it's not
13	covered by the plan or the order, and then they negotiated a
14	carve-out.
15	Our clients, we're making or we're making similar
16	kind of arguments now, believed they could've reasonably
17	relied on that because this is essentially talking about the
18	same kind of claim.
19	Second
20	THE COURT: But let me before you move on
21	MR. SKAPOF: Uh-huh.
22	THE COURT: to second, so what do you say to
23	Mr. Leblanc's hypothetical about aircraft ownership? In
24	fact, in American, there are very, very complex
25	relationships that govern aircraft ownership

	Page 39
1	MR. SKAPOF: Uh-huh.
2	THE COURT: the aircraft are in effect not
3	owned by the airline.
4	MR. SKAPOF: Uh-huh.
5	THE COURT: They and people are getting ready
6	to send me many, many briefs on many, many complicated
7	issues
8	MR. SKAPOF: Uh-huh.
9	THE COURT: relating to that. And if somebody
10	wanted to reserve, and in fact, various people did reserve
11	various rights as to particular aircraft, particular
12	airports, particular amounts owing, if those carve-outs at
13	confirmation were construed as to everybody in a similar
14	situation, I think that the debtor's counsel would've had no
15	choice in American to say, nobody gets any carve-outs, we
16	can't do this because we can't confirm a plan.
17	So I don't know how I can I'm just trying
18	MR. SKAPOF: Yeah.
19	THE COURT: to address that. This is a very
20	narrow issue about
21	MR. SKAPOF: It is. And
22	THE COURT: reliance on its someone else's
23	carve-out.
24	MR. SKAPOF: And I would answer that, and I would
25	state the Maxwell case, which is in our briefs that says,

Page 40 1 when you're dealing with a similar kind of issue in Maxwell, 2 it had to do with certain banks, and of whether the plan administrator in the UK could bring preference actions, and 3 we acknowledge the actual holding of that case is based on 4 5 comity, but there is dicta in a section that discusses res 6 judicata, which specifically says Barkley's Bank came 7 forward and got a carve-out on this exact issue. 8 And that post-confirmation, the other two banks 9 who are subject to the potential avoidance action were 10 allowed to have reasonably relied on that carve-out because 11 they were talking about the same thing. 12 So to switch that back to your example of the 13 airplane, if Mr. Nazer had come in and said, Arcapita, I 14 think you own my airplane, that's different than saying, I 15 think you're holding my money in trust because title never 16 passed to it. 17 So it's reasonable reliance. And so the question 18 becomes, was it reasonable to rely on that carve-out because 19 it effectively -- it looked like it covered your situation. THE COURT: Well, I think we've mixed our 20 21 metaphors there. 22 MR. SKAPOF: Uh-huh. 23 THE COURT: When Mr. Nazer is selling me an 24 airplane. 25 MR. SKAPOF: Right. Yes.

1	THE COURT: I think I used that as an example to
2	say
3	MR. SKAPOF: Yes.
4	THE COURT: some reservation that is central to
5	what's going on
6	MR. SKAPOF: Uh-huh.
7	THE COURT: in the plan, and it can be all
8	sorts of things. It can be an amount owed a the nature
9	of an asset, there are lots of things, and you can even have
10	it can even apply in things as far flung as the
11	government where somebody talks about the nature of a tax
12	owed and other taxing authorities could have the same
13	argument, and there you would you know, you could be
14	dealing with the IRS in 50 different states
15	MR. SKAPOF: Sure.
16	THE COURT: and other taxing authorities
17	overseas.
18	So my point was that if you have something that is
19	an issue that's raised that's, for lack of a more technical
20	term, a big deal, and somebody raises asks for
21	reservation and gets it, I'm wondering what that if I
22	adopt your thinking, how that doesn't wreak havoc in plans
23	going forward.
24	MR. SKAPOF: Well, I mean, it didn't wreak havoc
25	in Maxwell, and we would say that

Page 42 1 THE COURT: But there wasn't a holding in Maxwell. 2 MR. SKAPOF: There wasn't a holding, but it said 3 that even -- if it didn't decide in comity, they did say you -- res judicata doesn't apply here, the carve-out did apply 4 5 because you wouldn't --6 THE COURT: Well --7 MR. SKAPOF: -- even get to the comity part. But 8 my answer would be is, look, it has to be essentially on a 9 case-by-case basis. Because to flip it around, and this is 10 our fundamental position is, regardless of a tactical 11 mistake, which you know, or the fact that it would've been 12 better timing, does not as a legal matter allow a plan to 13 transform an asset that's not part of the estate into an 14 asset of the estate. 15 And if it does, it's based on some other argument 16 than res judicata. You asked the reorganized debtors if 17 they were making a laches argument, and they said no, but we reserve it for later and that's fine. 18 19 But what it sounds like they're saying or you may 20 be eluding to is waiver. But there's case law that says 21 waiver is a conscious decision that's not based on 22 negligence, mistake, or anything else to forego a right. 23 And I can give an example that's in their papers 24 about where you could see that situation is, in the 25 Northwest case --

1	THE COURT: Well, but that's why I used waiver
2	rather than I'm sorry, laches rather than waiver.
3	MR. SKAPOF: Yeah, okay.
4	THE COURT: Because waiver is a particular thing,
5	but laches basically say you didn't act promptly.
6	MR. SKAPOF: Yes, too little too late, I think
7	Your Honor
8	THE COURT: And I've got to say, I'm not
9	prejudging it
10	MR. SKAPOF: Uh-huh.
11	THE COURT: but there is a similar event that
12	occurred between the time when this could've been raised and
13	now that is a big problem.
14	MR. SKAPOF: Uh-huh.
15	THE COURT: So but I don't think we need to get
16	it into it here today.
17	MR. SKAPOF: No, we don't need to get into it, and
18	I think, you know, the positions that we're arguing here, I
19	would just mention that, you know, to the extent, and I get
20	it from the debtor's point of view, and say this is
21	extraordinary, you're going to reopen the plan, you're going
22	to do all this. But there are no cases that hold again
23	through the alchemy of a plan. You can change an asset that
24	doesn't belong to you as a debtor to one that you do.
25	THE COURT: But vou're presuming is that

1	(indiscernible) say a fact not in evidence. You're
2	presuming that it belongs to you.
3	MR. SKAPOF: Well
4	THE COURT: And so there certainly have presumed
5	all along
6	MR. SKAPOF: Right.
7	THE COURT: it belongs to them. The when
8	you talk about timing
9	MR. SKAPOF: Yeah.
10	THE COURT: bad timing is raising on the day of
11	confirmation
12	MR. SKAPOF: Uh-huh.
13	THE COURT: as opposed to a month before
14	confirmation.
15	MR. SKAPOF: Uh-huh.
16	THE COURT: That's bad timing. This is beyond bad
17	timing, so.
18	MR. SKAPOF: Well, there's a difference between
19	bad timing and being precluded timing, which is really what
20	we're on, and I would turn Your Honor to the Hollywell (ph)
21	case, the cite for that is 118 B.R. 876, Southern District
22	of Florida, 1990, and it's citing a Seventh Circuit case,
23	Pantel (ph), it's 777 F.2d 1281, 1985.
24	And the quote from the Hollywell case says, the
25	bankruptcy statutes do not give a bankruptcy court

1	jurisdiction, and then it talks about the specific property
2	interests that's at dispute here, without first finding that
3	the property also constitutes a part of the bankrupt's
4	property.
5	THE COURT: But didn't I make that finding by
6	having the debtors identify in the plan what the assets are?
7	I mean, I can't figure out how to distribute a pie unless I
8	know what the pie is, right?
9	MR. SKAPOF: I agree, Your Honor, but the federal
10	rules also say, bankruptcy rules say, if you want to make a
11	determination as to what property of the estate is, you have
12	to bring it by an adversary proceeding.
13	So buried in the schedule
14	THE COURT: Well, yes and no.
15	MR. SKAPOF: of a plan
16	THE COURT: I mean, are you saying that every plan
17	then has to have an adversary proceeding to ratify what's in
18	the plan?
19	MR. SKAPOF: No, but I think
20	THE COURT: Because a plan
21	MR. SKAPOF: Yeah.
22	THE COURT: has to I mean, you would have a
23	huge disclosure statement problem.
24	MR. SKAPOF: I agree, Your Honor, but
25	THE COURT: Because that's what a liquidation

	Page 46
1	analysis is. Here's what we have
2	MR. SKAPOF: Uh-huh.
3	THE COURT: and therefore, here's how many of -
5	MR. SKAPOF: Right.
6	THE COURT: you people in terms of creditors
7	there are
8	MR. SKAPOF: Uh-huh.
9	THE COURT: and the classes and how it's going
10	to and here's what things look like.
11	MR. SKAPOF: Well, first of all, the liquidation
12	analysis and the projections when you look at it, have the
13	similar boilerplate as we're all throwing that around as we
14	don't really know, these are forward-looking, this is
15	subject to claim, it could come in after and whatever.
16	So that's what it says. But more importantly, you
17	know, debtors, and we would it didn't happen in this
18	case, essentially asked for relief that needs to be brought
19	by motion or otherwise within a plan.
20	This particular plan, for example, on the plan
21	settlement basically says this is a motion under 9019, this
22	is what we're doing, this is why it's reasonable. It
23	doesn't they knew people had come forward, Nazer and even
24	earlier in the case that was sort of like we think maybe
25	this is not your money, there's issue.

Page 47 1 There's like a line in the disclosure statement 2 that says, we looked at it, we think it's ours. It's not the same kind of robust discussion that you get. And so --3 THE COURT: But if it says that in the disclosure 5 statement, we look -- people have raised this issue, we 6 looked at it, we think it's ours --7 MR. SKAPOF: Uh-huh. THE COURT: -- it's -- I mean, doesn't that cut 8 9 against you because the issue has been --MR. SKAPOF: Well, I don't think so, because again 10 11 when it says ours, we're making a distinction about what 12 we're asking for. And again, we're not asking for all of 13 our 12 million. 14 So if we're not asking for all of our 12 million, 15 there has to be something different that differentiates the 16 three from the other nine. And that projections in the plan 17 don't say anything about that. 18 THE COURT: But at what point are you --19 MR. SKAPOF: Well, I would answer that. I mean, 20 if you want to say at what point, I think if I can in here 21 two years from now, I wouldn't, because at some point, 22 laches and other equitable things would say, you know, this 23 has gone on too long. 24 THE COURT: Well, I'm not going to get into it 25 today, I've got to tell you though, I -- if you're saying

1	that those kind of concerns don't kick in for two years
2	after a plan
3	MR. SKAPOF: Uh-huh. Uh-huh.
4	THE COURT: is confirmed, I categorically would
5	completely reject that.
6	MR. SKAPOF: Yeah.
7	THE COURT: I don't need a specific set of facts
8	to
9	MR. SKAPOF: No.
10	THE COURT: go there.
11	So but my concern is this, you have to the
12	debtors identified the assets that were in the plan. The
13	language that you keep mentioning about things that aren't
14	property of the estate aren't covered. If I memory
15	serves, it's pretty boilerplate, I see it in every plan
16	everywhere.
17	MR. SKAPOF: But
18	THE COURT: And you're so asking it to carry an
19	awful lot of water here.
20	MR. SKAPOF: But just because something is
21	boilerplate doesn't say it has meaning. And again, I would
22	just turn to the cases that we cited that said, the plan
23	can't deal with the property that's not property of the 24	estate. And this plan says that.
25	And so our fundamental point and the cases that we

1	cited
2	THE COURT: I think that's right and that's why
3	there
4	MR. SKAPOF: Yeah.
5	THE COURT: are objections to confirmation that
6	need to be made, to say, this isn't property of the estate
7	and cite those cases. And I say, hold up, we have a
8	dispute, and that's what we do. And
9	MR. SKAPOF: Okay. So I guess my point is the
10	if it wasn't raised, then does it take something which
11	conceivably for these purposes, or for the purposes of this
12	hypothetical, wasn't property and affect the transfer and
13	make it the debtors. And if it does, is that law, res
14	judicata, is it waiver. We all talk here it's not waiver.
15	THE COURT: But you're for me to make anybody
16	to jump through that hoop, requires me to agree with you
17	MR. SKAPOF: Uh-huh.
18	THE COURT: that, in fact, the property is not
19	property of the estate. And I don't know that any more than
20	I know that it is property of the estate if we were thinking
21	about this prior to confirmation.
22	But let me I've certainly peppered you with
23	questions
24	MR. SKAPOF: Yeah.
25	THE COURT: $$ and I've done so, and I appreciate

Page 50 1 you shifting gears to address them, because I want to make 2 sure that I covered certain things, but. 3 MR. SKAPOF: Yeah. No, I think the colloquy that 4 we had, you know, does address the concerns. And, you know, 5 again I'll just return to this fundamental point is, is that 6 we're in agreement on a lot of particulars here. And one of 7 the things that we agree on is, is that as we understand or as we argue under Bahrain law, we did give up $9 million, 8 9 and we didn't object to the plan in terms of what that $9 10 million was classified as in terms of what its treatment is, 11 that -- whether the rights offering funds are subordinated. 12 We acknowledge. We can't do anything about that. 13 The ship has sailed on that. What we're arguing is, is that 14 25 percent of that never was in that bucket. 15 THE COURT: I understand it, but --16 MR. SKAPOF: Yeah. 17 THE COURT: -- it was in the debtor's bank account 18 is my concern. But --19 MR. SKAPOF: We'll --20 THE COURT: -- I think we've plowed this ground 21 pretty well --22 MR. SKAPOF: Yeah. 23 THE COURT: -- so I'm sure there may be some other 24 things that you want to mention --25 MR. SKAPOF: No, no, I --

	Page 51
1	THE COURT: before you conclude.
2	MR. SKAPOF: mean, otherwise, Your Honor, I
3	mean, we think the you know, the (indiscernible) legal
4	discussion in our brief and why we think, you know, we
5	thread the needle on this is in there, and you know, it's
6	there. I don't unless you have any other questions
7	THE COURT: No, I don't.
8	MR. SKAPOF: I don't.
9	THE COURT: Thank you very much.
10	MR. SKAPOF: Thank you very much, Your Honor.
11	MR. LEBLANC: Your Honor, I will I'll be
12	relatively brief, but there are a few things that I think
13	have to be mentioned.
14	I think I will, with the Court's indulgence
15	THE COURT: Sure.
16	MR. LEBLANC: I will just pull up the first
17	demonstrative we created.
18	THE COURT: It's always a shame to make a nice
19	demonstrative and not use it, so.
20	MR. LEBLANC: Should I take a picture of it, no,
21	no.
22	(Pause)
23	MR. LEBLANC: Your Honor, the words matter, and
24	I think everybody will agree with that. This is the
25	definition that Your Honor confirmed in the plan. Assets in

Page 52 1 relevant part, and we have the blow-up there, assets mean 2 all property wherever located in which any of the debtors 3 holds a legal or equity interest. Fair enough. That's what 4 they argued. The debtors don't hold an equitable interest 5 But it actually goes on from that. 6 Including, and then there's one clause, and -- so 7 including all property disclosed in the debtor's respective 8 schedules in the disclosure statement. That ends this 9 analysis, Your Honor. There was a disclosure of this, there 10 was no mention by them of any objection to that, none 11 whatsoever. 12 If I understand their --13 THE COURT: When you say disclosure of this, can 14 you be more precise? 15 MR. LEBLANC: Sure. Can I go to the demonstrative 16 because it's the next one? 17 (Pause) MR. LEBLANC: This is the full version. 18 19 MR. SKAPOF: So this is just the schedule? 20 MR. LEBLANC: That's the actual --21 MR. SKAPOF: Oh, it's Schedule B. 22 MR. LEBLANC: So, Your Honor, the debtor's schedule, Schedule B, disclosed all of the monies that were 23 24 in bank accounts all over the world, totaling $147 million. 25 That's what it disclosed. It identifies -- there's a number, and it's Schedule B-1 lists the bank accounts to Schedule B, Schedule B then Schedule B-1 lists the bank accounts. It has every dollar that Arcapita has listed on it, disclosed to the Court, disclosed to all the parties, and no mention was made by anybody other than Mr. Nazer of a contest to the -- when you go back to the plan definition of concluding -- of this Court concluding that that was the property of the estate.

Now, it's important to contrast this. They -- he mentioned the Tooney (ph) case or the Toni case. In the Toni case, the secured creditor there had completed a foreclosure action with respect to the debtor's residence, prior to the bankruptcy filing, the debtor filed for bankruptcy and listed on his schedules the house that had been the subject of the foreclosure action.

Subsequent to that, the Court noted that it didn't appear as though the secured creditor had gotten notice of the fact that the debtor was claiming a property interest in property that had been foreclosed upon.

That's the circumstance where I think it would be fair to say that the debtor should reasonably expect to commence an adversary proceeding to quiet title if they're going to put on their schedule a piece of property that had already been foreclosed upon at the time they filed their petition. That is not this case.

Because make no mistake about it, what they're suggesting would, in fact, require, in every single case, an actual adversary proceeding, to quiet title, because you cannot do a plan if your schedules can't be ordered to be said -- to be property of the estate.

If American can't say, we're going to dispose of our assets, and our assets include all of these aircraft with the comfort that that -- where there's no contest to it, that that is, in fact, property of the estate, you simply can't do it.

Yes, liquidation analyses include boilerplate language because claims may go down and may go up, and because assets, particularly if you think about this estate, where their assets consist of portfolio investments in companies that are of uncertain value, of course, the disclosure statement values are going to go up and they're going to go down.

But that doesn't mean that the debtor doesn't know and the Court doesn't know, and the parties who vote on the plan don't know what is and what is not property of the estate. It's about as fundamental as you can imagine in a bankruptcy case.

Now, let me turn to a second topic, the carve-out, the reservation. I want to read for the Court the entirety of the reservation, it's not long. Paragraph 65 of the Court's confirmation order -- of the Court's findings of fact with respect to confirmation. And it's actually -- it's not just called reservation of rights, it's actually -- the title, it's in bold, "Claims of Nazer" period in bold.

"Nothing in the confirmation order, the plan, or the plan documents shall prejudice or impair the right of, collectively the Nazers to argue that any property held by the debtors or the reorganized debtors is not property of the debtor's estates, or has been or is being improperly or wrongfully withheld from the Nazers," and that's defined as the title disputes.

And two, "That the Nazers have timely preserved their right to assert title disputes. And for the Nazers to be granted a remedy with respect thereto, nor shall anything in the confirmation order," then it preserves the debtor's right to contest the Nazers -- to contest that what's defined as the title disputes.

The title disputes are defined as the Nazer parties' title disputes. That odd maxim of statutory interpretation we cite from Justice Scalia's dissent is the expression unius est exclusion alterius. To state one thing means the exclusion of others.

It's not -- I don't think we needed to cite to a majority opinion from the Supreme Court to understand that that is a statutory -- that is a maxim of construction that courts routinely apply. We could've simply used the Latin.

Your Honor, two other things that I think -- I don't -- I'm sure they're not suggesting, because they weren't here, nor was I, but my colleagues certainly were here at the confirmation order. Your Honor was not a rubberstamp with respect to confirmation. I think Your Honor did what a judge is supposed to do when faced with findings, even in the absence of a contest to them.

The Court painstakingly went through the findings to make sure that the Court could enter each of the findings that were requested of it. You gave credence to the fact that there weren't people here objecting to the plan, that it was a settlement. But Your Honor went through in painstaking detail, and I'm advised by my colleague that you even apologized for the level of detail through which you went, the findings of fact. This was not a court acting as a rubberstamp. Even if that had anything to do with the application of res judicata because Your Honor's signature on a document is an order, however it came about. And I think that's the critical thing here, Your Honor.

Now, lastly, I just want to touch upon, because there's mention after mention after mention of they're giving up $9 million, giving up $9 million. It's a little bit to be judicious, it's a little misleading, Your Honor.

Your Honor is very familiar with this issue, as it relates to many other claimants, including Mr. Osohabi (ph). The Baeshens invested in certain things, they got shares in portfolio investments. Some of their money was not invested, 25 percent of it apparently they allege.

But it's not as though they gave it up, they traded that money for equity interest in other things. They didn't walk away from $9 million, they exchanged that in return for investments, just might -- like Captain Osohabi did, and Your Honor has already dealt with his claim with respect to the really almost identical assertions that he's entitled to get a return of his investments, even in those equity interests. That's what's going on here.

At the end of the day, Your Honor, this is truly extraordinary. They're asking you to fundamentally alter the Chapter 11 process, to require a debtor to quiet title to all of the property that they assert, they put on their schedules, to say that is their property, and Your Honor should reject the idea that that's an appropriate thing to do and you should dismiss this case without any further action by the debtors.

THE COURT: All right.

MR. LEBLANC: Thank you, Your Honor.

MR. SKAPOF: One brief point, Your Honor, and we're mostly going to rest on our papers here. I just Page 58 1 really want to address the last point and Mr. Leblanc's 2 actually correct, and we said walk away, I mean, I'm using 3 that colloquially. What I mean is, is we acknowledge that 75 percent 5 of our money was invested, it went to portfolio companies or 6 whatever it did, and whatever the treatment of that is under the plan, is the treatment under the plan. So that --7 8 THE COURT: Yeah, that's how I understood your 9 argument. 10 MR. SKAPOF: We're not seeking that money, and so 11 it's a little different than people who are saying 12 everything I gave, I want back. 13 THE COURT: You get your recovery under the plan. 14 MR. SKAPOF: Exactly. 15 THE COURT: Because there's a plan and a 16 confirmation order. And on the carve-out, again, I would 17 just point, and Your Honor, you know, can look at it. Maxwell one where one bank raised an issue as to a 18 19 particular action that the plan administrators wanted to 20 take, got its rights reserved, post-confirmation albeit in 21 dicta because it held in comity, the Court said, the one 22 covers the all. 23 THE COURT: All right. 24 MR. SKAPOF: And on that, we'll rest on our 25 papers, Your Honor, thank you very much.

1	THE COURT: All right. Thank you very much. I
2	appreciate the argument. I will take the matter under
3	advisement. Thank you.
4	The other two motions which really are essentially
5	one motion in terms of legal issues raised.
6	MS. ADLER: Give us just a moment to get
7	THE COURT: Absolutely, that's fine.
8	(Pause)
9	THE COURT: All right. Let me know when you're
10	ready.
11	MS. ADLER: I am ready, Your Honor.
12	THE COURT: All right. So before we start, I know
13	there's a slightly, but only ever so slightly, from what I
14	can tell, difference between the two motions, the facts.
15	But it would seem that the legal arguments and everything
16	that everybody has to say are otherwise identical. Am I
17	right in that?
18	MS. ADLER: That is correct, Your Honor. Most of
19	the facts there is an
20	THE COURT: I think it's one it's two versus
21	one.
22	MS. ADLER: substantial overlap of facts, and
23	where they don't overlap and where I think it impacts the
24	argument, I'm going to address that with Your Honor
25	THE COURT: Okay.

Page 60 1 MS. ADLER: -- but counsel and I agreed that it 2 would be more efficient for the Court --3 THE COURT: I agree. MS. ADLER: -- hopefully if we made the arguments 5 one time, as opposed to the identical arguments twice. 6 THE COURT: Thank you for that. 7 All right, proceed. MS. ADLER: Lani Adler for -- from K&L Gates for 8 9 Defendant Bahrain Islamic Bank which we call BISB and Tadhamon, Defendant Tadhamon Capital B.S.C., which we call 10 11 Tadhamon. 12 Your Honor is aware that neither of these 13 defendants filed proofs of claim, and have not appeared 14 other than to object to the jurisdiction of this court. 15 the real issues here, Your Honor, I believe, are whether 16 this Court could constitutionally exercise personal 17 jurisdiction over these clients in the first instance. 18 Because if you determine that you cannot, we don't even get 19 to the subsequent arguments and the extraterritorial 20 application of the Bankruptcy Code on these particular 21 facts. 22 Now, the plaintiff has admitted in both instances, let me just frame the facts for a moment. In BISB, there 23 24 was a single transfer by Arcapita to BISB of $10 million 25 made on March 14th. That investment was made by Arcapita pursuant to an agreement negotiated, performed, executed in Bahrain for the purchase in that instance of commodities outside of Bahrain, and subject to Bahraini law.

The agreements specified that everything that BISB did, including with respect to the collection and the movement of funds, it was undertaking as Arcapita's agent.

In the Tadhamon case similarly, there were two transfers, each of $10 million on one day, the following day March 15th. In that agreement again, between two Bahrain entities because let's not forget that the debtor is Bahraini, and each of the banks is Bahraini and there is no dispute on these facts. I believe that all of the facts we're going to be discussing this morning are undisputed as between the parties.

In the Tadhamon case, there were two transfers on March 15th of $10 million each made by the Bahraini debtor Arcapita to the Bahraini Bank Tadhamon. Each of those called for -- was made pursuant again to an agreement negotiated, performed, and executed in Bahrain, had nothing to do with the United States, in that case, for the purpose of treasury securities in Bahrain, outside of the United States.

And that agreement not only specified that Bahraini law would govern, but also that any disputes arising out of that agreement would be adjudicated in Bahrain.

THE COURT: Can I ask, and maybe it's not proper for me to consider it, and you can feel free to tell me so, I didn't see anything in the record about why New York banks were involved at all in this particular transaction.

MS. ADLER: The two who --

THE COURT: And maybe nobody knows, I --

MS. ADLER: Well, apparently Arcapita, the way that these templates were set up, and you see the templates in the papers because they were made part of the agreements was Arcapita wanted to make the transfer in dollars, and it wanted to make it from its -- Arcapita's JPMorgan Chase corresponding bank accounts in New York.

So the recipients of the transfers, BISB on the 14th, and Tadhamon on the 15th, had to have an account that could in the first instance accept the dollars. In BISB's case, it used a correspondent bank account also at Chase, and the dollars were transferred the very same day to BISB's bank account in Manama, Bahrain. And in Tadhamon's case, because it didn't even have a corresponding bank account in the United States, it used an HSBC account for the, again, one day transfer, transferred the same day to its Bahrain, but the Tadhamon -- the account used by Tadhamon was not even Tadhamon's, it was the account of Tadhamon's Bahraini Bank, which is called Khaleeji Commercial Bank.

And you see that in the swift transfer documents where they describe both of those intermediary banks, I'm calling them intermediary in New York, as the intermediary banks. But your question raises an important point because the dollars, or the funds, remained in New York for less than 12 hours, according to the SWIFT documents, and there really isn't a dispute. They're pleaded that way, they go both ways, I don't think that's in dispute.

And the SWIFT documents indicate that they were ordered in the BISB case by First Islamic Bank, which is Arcapita's either relative or its former name from Bahrain, and in the second instance, Tadhamon's the same.

So these are Bahraini transactions that have this intermediary slice where they're on one day in BISB's case in one transaction, and in Tadhamon's two, briefly routed for literally a matter of hours through New York.

And if you look at the Maxwell case, which I know you were talking about at a different instance this morning, but we discuss at length, and it speaks more to extraterritoriality than jurisdiction, and I'll hook it into jurisdiction in a moment.

But the transfers in Maxwell that are discussed at great length in both the bankruptcy court case and the district court case were made by Maxwell, the British debtor in one instance to Barclay's another British debtor there, and in another instance by Maxwell to NatWest, another

British bank. And those transfers which originated in the same fashion, they were ordered by the British debtor to be made to these other British banks likewise passed through momentarily New York, and they describe that in the facts.

In no way, and I've jumped to extraterritoriality and in a moment, I'll jump back to jurisdiction, did any of the courts that looked very hard and scrutinized those transfers from top to bottom consider that tiny New York intermediary piece to in any way constitute -- make those domestic or U.S. transfers. They did not overcome the British-ness of the transactions, that's really important. And they did not, for purposes of determining the extraterritoriality analysis, whether there's -- those were domestic transfers that therefore one did not have to go through the calculation of whether the Bankruptcy Code could be extraterritorially applied, or would it have to be.

Both courts concluded that those were foreign transfers because they were made by one British entity to other British entities. They started in England, they ended up in England, the funds ended up in England on behalf of what was purported to be antecedent debt incurred abroad and that little piece of it, that little New York moment did not undo that in any sense.

And if we look at that, if I bring that back to the jurisdictional piece, I think we should start with that because that's the most fundamental here, the plaintiffs have conceded that they haven't been able to make out a general jurisdiction case, meaning that there's a systematic presence of either bank here.

They conceded, and they haven't put in anything that refutes the moving affidavits by the CEOs of both BISB and of Tadhamon that says, we don't do business here, we don't have an office, we don't have a staff, we don't have a phone number, we don't have property, we don't solicit business here, we don't advertise business here, we don't have any of the indicia of being present here because we are not.

So let's just put general jurisdiction to the side, and I believe that the defendants can concede it. And just on that one point, Your Honor, defendants threw in in their opposition papers what I believed was kind of a desperate fall-back argument, which was, well, yeah, we can't make out general jurisdiction, but maybe, Judge, you should give us an opportunity to take discovery on it, because maybe we could somehow come up with it.

And the cases are really clear that you do not get discovery for jurisdictional purposes if you can't come up with any facts whatsoever, if you haven't made out a prima facie case, or you can't say something specific. So in that case, they haven't done anything to refute the general jurisdiction.

Now, specific jurisdiction, which I'm sure Your Honor knows, requires that the -- there be some purposeful availment by the defendant in this case with the United States that is tied in some meaningful substantive way to the claims at issue.

Here the only allegation that speaks to specific jurisdiction at all is that -- it started as Arcapita determined to make this transfer in -- from its New York correspondent bank to another one. But then I think defendants realized, gee, that was Arcapita's action, not the defendants. So they changed it to defendant's designated a bank account.

Well, to get this deal, defendants had to come up with a bank account, an intermediary bank account. And the question really becomes is that good enough under the Leachy (ph) cases, when is a -- the use -- the one day single time only use of a correspondent bank account good enough to predicate specific jurisdiction. And there is not a single case that the plaintiff can point to where it does.

In the Leachy case, which is the leading case on this, in which Your Honor may know that the Second Circuit certified the question to the Court of Appeals, and then it went back to the Second Circuit, the Court of Appeals and the Second Circuit determined that the defendant there, which was called Lebanese Canadian Bank had the -- its use of a correspondent bank account in connection with tort claims involving the tourist financing of Middle Eastern terrorist organizations which the American/Canadian, and there may have been one other nationality of plaintiffs, had claimed they'd been injured by, they've lost family or family members as a result.

In that case, the Leachy case said, for a correspondent bank account to predicate specific jurisdiction, it needs to be recurring, it needs to be deliberate, and it needs to be the tort itself. It needs to be actionable in itself.

So in that case, the terrorist financing was literally occasioned by the dozens and dozens, and that dozens I'm quoting, of the wire transfers made through that account. And it was Lebanese.

In this case, by contrast, we do not have anything remotely recurring. And, in fact, the Second Circuit when they're discussing the recurringness, says you've got to have enough recurring deliberate, so that it is quote, in effect a course of dealing between the parties, to use this correspondent bank account.

Here, not only do we not have a course of dealing, but the complaints in both the BISB and Tadhamon actions allege that there is no course of dealing. These were kind of one off singular transactions, thing one.

Thing two, it's not deliberate, it's ministerial, it's not like they're using it again. And most importantly, thing three, or as importantly of thing three, it is not the use of the correspondent bank account that is actionable or the tort here.

No one is claiming that the transfer by itself violated any statute, it is only by virtue of Arcapita filing bankruptcy and/or here, so that isn't an activity undertaken by the defendants and/or BISB and Tadhamon who each set off amounts, and I think you're familiar with that, but I'll loop that back in, which occurred in Bahrain or failing as plaintiff's claim, to pay certain proceeds to the -- to Arcapita, which also occurred in Bahrain that that happened.

Again, for specific jurisdiction, the critical concept regardless of the correspondent bank account we've just covered that, but its purposeful availment.

THE COURT: Does it make any difference in your analysis, or had -- would you like me to construe the fact that at one point some funds were reinvested? Does it matter at all?

MS. ADLER: The funds were reinvested in Tadhamon, and it could -- it made the argument in Tadhamon because we

Page 69 1 believe that if there were jurisdiction, it would show that 2 there were, you know, that Arcapita had access to these 3 funds in order to instruct us to reinvest them, and that's handwritten in timing. So that would defeat -- that would 4 5 be sort of a 12(b)(6) that would effectively preclude those 6 claims. But from a jurisdictional point of view, which is 7 what I'm focusing on that --8 9 THE COURT: Right. 10 MS. ADLER: -- I can put that to the side. 11 THE COURT: All right. 12 MS. ADLER: But I do want to make the point, Your 13 Honor, the purposeful availment in all of the Supreme Court 14 and everybody else's articulation of it, requires that a 15 defendant purposefully direct activities toward residence of 16 the forum, residence of the United States. 17 So if you look at the one activity that plaintiff 18 claim, which is the use of this correspondent bank account, that activity wasn't directed at residence of the forum, it 19 20 was directed at Arcapita, designating the bank account was 21 directed at Arcapita in Bahrain because you needed to do it 22 to effectuate this agreement. 23 And the one piece of paper that plaintiffs have 24 submitted in their opposition papers, it's Exhibit DRA (ph) 25 to Mr. Bassett's (ph) affidavit is basically a hearsay exchange of e-mails between one person at Arcapita and another person at Arcapita, and it's intended to show that BISB instructed Arcapita to send the dollars to this particular account in New York.

And aside from the fact that it's hearsay, and aside from the fact that it's between two Arcapita people, so query its credibility in the first instance, but it makes the point that it's directed at Bahrain. It's not directed at any residence of the United States. It has nothing to do with that.

So the other point that flows from that is that purposeful availment has to be an independent action undertaken by the defendant to avail itself of the forum, the benefits of the forum, the United States in this instance. But the use of the correspondent bank account was undertaken by both BISB and Tadhamon expressly as the agent of Arcapita. That doesn't get you to that independent purposeful availment stuff.

And the fact that it was undertaken is actually explicit in the contractual language in both. And I can point you out -- point that out to you, it's in our brief. So I don't think you really need it.

So again, the only question that we're really dealing with here, is whether this truly ministerial, momentary, internal, intermediary exchange of the dollars in

Page 71 1 a Bahraini transaction between Bahraini entities where the 2 money started in Bahrain and ended up in Bahrain under an 3 agreement, that we all agree was Bahrain, governed by 4 Bahraini law, and in one case, to be adjudicated in Bahrain 5 is good enough on a one time basis. 6 And don't think it's close question, Your Honor, I 7 don't think it is, especially when they -- those activities were undertaken as the agent of the plaintiff, and the agent 8 9 of the Bahraini plaintiff. 10 THE COURT: I saw that your reply addressed the 11 cases that the plaintiffs rely upon --12 MS. ADLER: Right. THE COURT: -- and I didn't know -- and those 13 14 include I guess Bank Brussels Lambert and Correspondent 15 Services in the Dell case, and I certainly have looked at 16 that. I don't know if you have anything else that you want 17 to say in the context of your argument --18 MS. ADLER: On those -- sure. 19 THE COURT: -- on those cases, and how to 20 understand them. 21 MS. ADLER: I think those cases are easily 22 distinguishable. All of them were cases brought under 23 302(a). In Bank Brussels Lambert you may recall that the 24 question was whether a Puerto Rico law firm had enough 25 systematic presence so that its other actions in New York considered tort actions, could get it within the rubric of 302(a). 302(a) which I happen to have in front of me, the New York Long Arm, will enable someone who commits a tort without the state, causing injury to person or property within the state. So that's the first piece. We didn't cause any injury or any property to anybody within the state.

But you have to, if you want to be in 302(a), either regularly do or solicit business, or engage in a persistent course of conduct, that's 302(a)(1) which was the provision at issue in Bank Brussels Lambert. And there, in Bank Brussels Lambert, that Puerto Rico law firm had an apartment in New York that it used on -- or that the Court found that it used on a regular basis, and that got it to the piece about regularly engaging in a persistent court of conduct.

And the Court also found that the Puerto Rico law firm engaged in advertising and PR because it was trying to get more work in the New York market from New York clients.

Obviously that's a distinguishable case.

The other cases were similarly much closer and though the plaintiff periodically says, yes, but one instance is good enough because that's its way to get around the Leachy correspondent bank requirement of recurring and deliberateness; a) it has to be deliberate which it wasn't;

and b) in those cases, again, the use of the bank account was itself the tort.

In one of the cases it -- the defendant is accused of making unauthorized securities trades, generally by the way for New York plaintiffs, and in that instance, they used the -- it was the bank account through which they made the trades. So much closer to the account being the instrument of action, being actionable on its own without anything else, and similarly so were the other cases.

I think again it's important to know the plaintiffs beef as it were, it's not the use of the correspondent bank account, that was just a, in my opinion, contrived construct to try to generate jurisdiction.

The beef, and it's pleaded this way, is that the defendants either did not repurchase the investments postpetition as initially planned, and/or that they set off the amounts which they were permitted to do under Bahraini law, and which plaintiff has not challenged by the way -- I mean, challenged the propriety of the Bahraini law. They challenge that they don't like the set off, but they haven't challenged that Bahraini law permits it.

With respect -- oh, now there's one more piece of the jurisdictional analysis that I should get to.

If there -- and again, we're in constitutionally
-- we're in Fifth Amendment due process because the bankruptcy and United States.

If you get to -- if you find the minimum contacts, then there is a second question that the Court is obligated to engage in, which is whether it is constitutionally reasonable to exert -- to -- for the Court to exercise jurisdiction. And that reasonableness is articulated as is, does it -- would it comport with substantial justice and fair play for the Court to exercise jurisdiction.

I don't think there is -- you don't get to that question in the first instance, if you don't get through minimal contacts. And so our argument is that, you don't have minimal contacts here, so you don't need to get to that question.

But even if you did get to that question, Your Honor, the metric is could the defendant -- is it fair that the defendant could reasonably foresee being hailed, and they spell it h-a-l-e-d, into court, and the answer is, I don't see how that's possible. Again, because were Bahraini transactions for performance that took place in Bahrain or outside the United States under Bahraini law with no connection to the United States to be adjudicated and to be governed by Bahraini law. There's just no way a defendant could imagine being hailed into court here. I don't see that.

The analogy is to the Supreme Court Assai (ph)

case, and Your Honor may know that the Court found that it's inappropriate often where you have claims that have basically little, if anything, to do with the United States. In Osohahi (ph), there was a third party claim because there had been a tort action between I think a bicycle tire manufacturer in Taiwan and the tire manufacturer which had blown out in Japan. The Court found it was wholly inappropriate to -- and that the California state court in that instance did not have jurisdiction.

And in connection with that, I want to point out that this plaintiff is not without a remedy. If this plaintiff thinks that set off was inappropriate, this plaintiff which has among its members, the committee members, a number of Bahraini entities itself, can go to Bahrain and challenge the legitimacy of the set-off, if it so chooses.

Now -- nor -- so again, just to reiterate on the discovery piece, I've told Your Honor why I don't think discovery is warranted on general jurisdiction, but the cases are very clear that this is different than other bankruptcy examinations that one is not entitled to a fishing expedition to put a defendant to the trouble and expense of discovery, if there's just nothing there, even on a specific jurisdiction basis.

In this case, the defendants -- the plaintiff's opposition papers said well, we should get discovery to get more information about the transfers because again, specific jurisdiction, you have to link up the specifics to the claim. And the answer is, they have access to Arcapita. They know as much about the transfers as anybody, and it wasn't able to generate for them any basis for jurisdiction other than this one time correspondent bank use. That is not good enough, and the cases are quite clear on that.

And there's kind of a due process to it one could understand, which is if you really don't have a case, and you've dragged someone in to the expense and a burden of having to show up in court to make that point, you surely shouldn't be able to keep it going, if you don't have any good reason to do it, and the cases are very clear, that hope and conjuncture, and they use those words, hope and speculation I think, are not a sufficient basis to warrant discovery for jurisdictional purposes.

Now, on extraterritoriality, the plaintiff makes two arguments that have been squarely rejected in courts in this district. The first is that as Your Honor probably knows for a statute to be applied extraterritorial under Morrison and the recent Supreme Court and Second Circuit cases like Norags (ph) the statute has to extremely clearly provide for extraterritorial application. Statutes that speak to foreign commerce like the RICO statute are not good enough. Almost no statute has been found good enough that I'm aware of.

The plaintiff's argument is that the wherever located in the definition of property of the estate in Section 541 of the Code is good enough, that argument was expressly rejected in both the Maxwell bankruptcy case and district court case. And interestingly, I'd like to point out that in the second amended disclosure statement filed by the debtor, not by the committee, but of course, the committee stands in the shoes of the debtor, the debtors conceded that those cases are currently good law, and they remain good law, their words.

So that's not good enough, and that gets you there. The second argument, and I point out that in, you know, generic words are not good enough, the Keyable (ph) Supreme Court says any and every are not sufficient, that's at 133 S.Court at 1665, and in Morrison, the -- Judge Scalia went even farther and said, "possible interpretations of statutory language."

So language that one could not arguably unreasonably engraft something on to Allah wherever located, again are not good enough, 130 S.Court at 2883.

So that's the first piece, we don't have the language. The second piece is you then -- you also scrutinize the transfer itself, and you scrutinize according

Page 78 1 to Maxwell, the totality of the transfer, not just the teeny 2 momentary hours long piece of it that occurs in New York. 3 To determine if the transfer is domestic, in which 4 case, you don't need to worry about extraterritorial 5 application, or if the transfer is itself foreign, and 6 therefore, you have to consider whether the statute can be 7 extraterritorially applied. 8 I don't think that there is any substantive real 9 question that on these facts, which are very close to the 10 maximal facts, that these transfers began and ended in 11 Again, I don't want to keep repeating myself, 12 between Bahraini entities. 13 THE COURT: Well, the debtors cited the use of the 14 correspondent bank, you responded by saying that that was 15 essentially Arcapita's direction, and in other words, 16 Arcapita required this. 17 MS. ADLER: I said that --THE COURT: 18 And --19 MS. ADLER: -- I said anything we did was 20 undertaken, and I said that even if you put that -- as 21 Arcapita's agent, and even if you put that aside, it's 22 ministerial, it's not critical to the transaction. 23 THE COURT: No, I understand, but what do you say 24 to the notion that if that's what the agreement said and

Arcapita said, well, in order to sign this agreement and do this, we want it done this way, that that's a decision to avail yourself from the forum, it may be done at the direction of somebody else, but it's still a decision to avail yourself of the forum.

MS. ADLER: I don't think it's availing yourself of the forum. I think it's really ministerial. So I think you make a good point, Judge, you have to focus on two things. You have to focus on a) is there independent action by the defendant, which I think there is not, but b) you look at that action itself, and if it's too, I'll use the legal phrase, namby-pamby, if it's too ministerial or adventitious is a word I had known before I started reading these cases, that's not good enough.

And again, in Maxwell, you know, the monies that get transferred, get transferred in the first instance from Maxwell through a New York account to the debtor's New York accounts and immediately transferred to the debtors in Britain.

And in Maxwell, the case, certainly the extraterritoriality, that the connection to the U.S. was even stronger, because the funds that were transferred, were those that indisputably were the proceeds of the sale of U.S. assets. We don't even have that connection here.

But I don't think that if you -- the agreements do not say New York -- that there is no agreement and there is no piece of paper that says either BISB or Tadhamon has to use a New York account to do it. The agreements leave open, in the BISB case, and we can look -- I can take you through those documents. In the BISB case, you know, the way these work is there's an overlapping agreement, and then there are a series of templates because you want to make it -- it needs to -- it is structured to be Sharia compliant, so that there won't be interests by both parties.

THE COURT: Right.

MS. ADLER: So the way that it works in BISB, is that either party can propose a transaction by which the agent, in this case, BISB and Tadhamon would purchase, in the BISB case, commodities, in the Tadhamon case, treasury securities for Arcapita. Arcapita wants to do those deals out of the dollars that none of them say -- the template in the BISB says, it leaves blank which bank account BISB will use, and it says it will be an account in favor, in f-a-v-o-u-r, of BISB and Tadhamon does something similar. And then when they do the specifics, they do it -- they put in the accounts.

So I don't think -- I don't know of any case where receipt of funds, and there are cases and we've cited them in our brief, Your Honor, receipt of funds on a one time transitory basis in New York, whether whoever designated the account, is sufficient to predicate personal jurisdiction.

Page 81 1 THE COURT: All right. Okay. 2 MS. ADLER: There just is simply zero authority for that. 3 I think we were talking about extraterritoriality, 5 and I think I made the point that there is no basis, 6 especially when you look at Maxwell, that these transfers 7 when scrutinized in their totality, could be considered 8 domestic rather than Bahraini in nature, and therefore, they 9 would require extraterritorial application. 10 Finally, we argued that international comity would 11 more of this Court's deference to Bahraini law and set off, 12 you've got two Bahraini parties, Bahraini transaction who 13 agree that Bahraini law is going to cover, and Tadhamon, who 14 also agree that stuff is going to be adjudicated, you know, 15 disputes are going to be adjudicated in Bahrain. 16 The plaintiff seems to think that there is a 17 requirement that there be a pending parallel insolvency 18 proceeding. There is no case that says that. And the 19 Hilton v Guyo (ph) language, which is what's always cited 20 says the Court is to pay deference to judicial legislative proceedings. I don't think that's required. 21 22 Again, you know, the parties understood that they were going to be doing a transaction under Bahraini law. 23 24 Bahraini law, and it's important to note this, provides for set off, and it's different than the U.S. set off law.

Page 82 1 Bahraini law it's quoted to you, we've given you as good --2 does not require for mutuality, and Bahraini law specifies 3 in its set off provision, that a creditor can set off obligations even from a different agreement that is 4 5 different or than the U.S. law is required of mutuality and 6 would call for, I think, different results here. 7 And again if the plaintiff thinks that's problematic, the plaintiff easily can go to Bahrain and 8 9 address it. 10 I don't think we get to any of the equities of 11 bankruptcy law or creditors being treated differently if the 12 Court does not have jurisdiction or the Bankruptcy Code 13 cannot be applied on these facts, Your Honor. Thank you. 14 THE COURT: All right. Thank you. It is a 15 quarter to 1. I'll give you the option of whether you want 16 to proceed straight through, or take a break for lunch. 17 MR. LEBLANC: Your Honor, I'm certainly at the 18 pleasure of the Court, so I'm prepared to proceed. I 19 actually am currently in a trial downstairs, one floor down, 20 so I'd love to get back to that, but if Your Honor wants to 21 take a break --22 THE COURT: No, that's fine. 23 MR. LEBLANC: -- I don't have any witnesses today, 24 so I'm --25 So to be so long-winded, Your Honor. MS. ADLER:

Page 83 1 THE COURT: No, no, not at all. 2 MR. LEBLANC: I'm going to be going down there and 3 sitting. THE COURT: You --5 MR. LEBLANC: So -- but I --6 MS. ADLER: It was the guys before us. 7 THE COURT: All right. No, I think --MR. LEBLANC: Your Honor, whatever Your Honor 8 9 wants to do. 10 THE COURT: -- that's fine. I'm fine. 11 figured I'd always ask because I do my -- when I did the 12 Chapter 13 cases, I went from 10 in the morning till when 13 they were done, and often at 4 o'clock, and when I told my 14 wife that, she accused me of being inhumane. So I decided I 15 should ask rather than barreling ahead in circumstances. 16 MR. LEBLANC: At least in those cases, you're only 17 being inhumane to yourself, Your Honor, not because you've 18 got, I assume, people flowing through. 19 THE COURT: No, there are a couple of lawyers that 20 are in there for the long haul usually, but anyway, yeah, let's -- I'm fine, let's go ahead. 21 22 MR. LEBLANC: Your Honor, let me begin by -- I've 23 never actually had somebody correct our spelling in a brief standing at the podium, so I apologize sincerely, Your 24 25 Honor, for the typographical error when we misspelled hailed

Page 84 1 apparently in our brief. I thought that was just odd. 2 MS. ADLER: It's counter intuitive. MR. LEBLANC: Your Honor, so let me -- I think it 3 4 is --5 THE COURT: It's a nice quaint spelling. 6 MR. LEBLANC: Sure. Your Honor, I think it's a 7 little bit -- it's important to step back, and obviously I 8 don't think there's any fair dispute. This is what's 9 alleged in the complaint. 10 The actions that were taken here deprive the 11 estate of $30 million worth of assets. They were 12 transferred a few days before the bankruptcy, they were 13 transferred in amounts that were almost the same as amounts 14 that were owed by Arcapita, and then subsequent to that they 15 were -- you know, they exercised what they claimed to be a 16 right of set off. And as a result of that, the Arcapita 17 estate was deprived of $30 million, which would have otherwise been available to distribute to creditors when 18 19 these banks would've like everyone else had a claim against 20 these estates and recovered on a pro rata basis. 21 THE COURT: No, I understand that, but -- and 22 certainly I know that's a good fact to get out there, but I 23 don't know that it's relevant for what I have to decide in 24 the motions. 25 Well, I think it is relevant, Your MR. LEBLANC:

Page 85 1 Honor, for a couple of reasons. Because you actually have 2 to look at the claims that are asserted in the motion, 3 because there are five of them. And their motion just 4 mushes everything together. 5 And, Your Honor, I said at the outset, when I was 6 talking about the other motion that you're hearing some 7 extraordinary things argued today, and let me tell you why that is. No court in the history of the Bankruptcy Code, so 8 9 far as I can tell, has ever said that the automatic stay is 10 not extraterritorial. None. 11 Maxwell doesn't do it, and Your Honor, I'm sorry, 12 I'm getting responses to my argument as I'm standing here. 13 Sorry, I apologize. MS. ADLER: THE COURT: All right. Well, let's -- I mean, I 14 15 want to address personal jurisdiction first anyway. 16 MR. LEBLANC: Sure. 17 THE COURT: And as I understand it, I think people 18 are unanimous in how to look at the case and what the issues are, and that personal jurisdiction is one issue that's been 19 20 raised, and extraterritoriality is another. 21 MR. LEBLANC: Sure. 22 THE COURT: So let's sort of take it, personal 23 jurisdiction first. I think the -- if the case arises or 24 falls on the extraterritoriality, thank you, of the 25 automatic stay, I'd be very surprised.

MR. LEBLANC: Fair enough, Your Honor. Let's -so let me deal with personal jurisdiction.

Your Honor, there is -- we've not found a single case that has said, and this is where we dispute that the facts are the facts, but there's one critical distinction. The parties here actually performed the contract in the United States. The only exchange of consideration that occurred, occurred between two New York banks. They purposely availed themselves of the New York banking system to exchange the only piece of consideration that was to be exchanged to commence the contract. That is undisputable.

And, Your Honor, there is no case, none, that says that the use of a bank account in the U.S. to consummate a transaction, and a suit about that transaction, that that does not constitute personal jurisdiction. That is not what the Listy (ph) case says.

And it's important to recognize, the Listy court had the facts before that it had. It had a year of discovery in which it was determined that there were dozens of transactions. Those were the facts. But the New York Court of Appeals on the certification of that question, Your Honor, the facts were that there were dozens of transactions. But that's not what the New York Court of Appeals held was necessary.

And quite to the contrary, Your Honor, the Correspondent Services case that we cite, the Correspondent Services, and I will quote from that decision says, "the single purposeful act of transferring JVW's funds to New York constituted the transacting of business from which the cause of action directly arose." That's Correspondent Services.

THE COURT: Well, that raises a good point. So -where the parties disagree. I understand that what the debtors are seeking is -- well, exactly what are the debtors seeking? That's why I asked about the reinvesting of some of the money after the bankruptcy so because -- to sort of dumb this down, think about it as a practical matter, doesn't it make -- doesn't that make it less about those transfers and more about then what happened later, which is, you decide to set off the amount of money and not give it back to us, and you refused to honor your agreement to, on the maturity date, pay us.

So it's not the -- at least they say, it's not the investment of the money, it's rather what happened at the end.

MR. LEBLANC: Well, Your Honor, then that's why I started to go through the claims, and I think it's important to think about what claims we assert. We assert a breach of contract because they had an obligation to return the funds upon the conclusion of the contract. That's true, whether there's reinvestment or not. And to be clear, there's only reinvestment with respect to one of the two institutions, there's not with respect to the other.

THE COURT: Right.

MR. LEBLANC: So there's a breach of contract claim. The consummation of the contract; i.e., the exchange of consideration occurs in New York. And, in fact, in the case of Tadhamon, documents that they submitted make clear that when Tadhamon is supposed to return the money to Arcapita with the profit, it's identified on those documents and there's four of them that they submitted, Exhibits -- I think it's B, C, D and E to their motions, all four of those identified Arcapita's New York bank account as the place to which they were to remit the funds. That was the direction.

So there's a breach of contract claim, unrelated to whether or not there was reinvestment. The second claim is a claim for turnover under Section 541 -- 542 of the Bankruptcy Code.

The turnover claim, Your Honor, there is no dispute as to whether or not this is property of the estate. They don't contest that, that it's property of the estate, because this is a matured debt.

So the second claim, turnover, doesn't, in our view, Your Honor, turn on whether or not there is reinvestment of the proceeds. It's Arcapita's money. The debt matured, they're obligated to turn the money over.

It's Arcapita's property.

The third claim is an automatic -- a claim for violation of the automatic stay under Section 362. That relates to the contention that they've made that without coming to Court, that they simply unilaterally set it off.

The fourth claim, and this is the only claim as to which you could even potentially claim it was a later acting event. That claim is a preference claim.

Now, just let me be clear about that. That's pled in the alternative, Your Honor, because to the extent that they contend that instead of being a contract that called for them to return the money, it was designed to repay an antecedent obligation, then we would assert that was a preference. Or alternatively, to the extent that they contend that there was a set-off, we would say that set-off was a preference, because it was made five days before the bankruptcy filing at a point in time that the other elements of Section 547 are met.

And then the fifth claim, one as to which there really isn't any defense, as far as we can tell if -- it's only a claim if we lose, that isn't a claim objection because the debt that we don't believe has been set off, which we believe we owe to them if they return the money, the debt is scheduled, and therefore, needs to be objected to.

And so as to that claim, there can't be a personal jurisdiction argument. They would -- I assume, if there's a dismissal, they would simply default on that question and we could expunge that record from the schedules and no claim would be made.

But it's important for those reasons, Your Honor, to talk about each and every one of those claims, because the two primary arguments are just fundamentally different as they relate to them. Because when you think about the -- the first three claims all relate to the transaction and the consummation of that transaction incurred entirely in New York. You would be, I submit, Your Honor, the first judge to look at a case in which the transaction that is being sued upon was consummated in New York, and you would conclude -- between two banks in New York, and you would conclude that you did not have jurisdiction over that.

Now, I want to be clear, because there was I think some effort to muddle this. Your Honor has, under the Constitution, the full reach of the jurisdiction that the Court has. Now, you have as expansive of a reach as the Constitution provides.

To the extent that something is covered by the New York Long Arm Statute, you have that reach as well. Because it's been said many times that the New York Long Arm Statute is less extensive than the reach of Article 5 of the Fifth Amendment to the Constitution.

So to the extent that it's covered, now the Lessy (ph) case I think is quite instructive on this issue. The facts were that there were dozens of transactions, but what was the relevant part? What did the Court use the fact that there were dozens of transactions? And I think it's important because from time to time we stand here and we say cases what mean, I think it's important to read the words that they actually use.

The Court begins by -- there's two elements to the 302, because that was a 302(a) case. The Court begins by saying, "In its response to our certified questions," and this is at page 168 of the Second Circuit decision, "the Court of Appeals confirmed that Amego Foods v Marine Midland Bank (ph)," and I won't give the cite there, "stands for the proposition that the use of a New York correspondent bank account standing alone may be considered a transaction of business under the Long Arm Statute, if the defendant's use of the correspondent bank account was purposeful."

And then they go through a discussion, and make note of the fact that there were dozens and dozens of transfers. And what do they say about that?

"The Court focused on the allegations that LCB used its New York correspondent account, 'dozens' of times

'to affect its support of Shadid (ph) and Shared Terraskulls (ph), not 'once or twice by mistake'."

Next line, "The Court confirmed that this conduct indicates the desirability and a lack of coincidence."

That's the relevance of the number of transactions.

Now, the Court -- the Second Circuit then again, quoting for the Court of Appeals goes on to say, "Because the defendant's allegedly culpable conduct stems from this use of the New York correspondent account, the Court of Appeals concluded the plaintiff's claims are sufficiently related to LCB's New York business activity to satisfy the second prong of 302(a)(1)."

Now, Your Honor, the issue that they were faced with there, the injury that was complained of in the Listy case occurred in Lebanon and Israel, when there is injuries to individuals living in Israel from attacks by Hezbollah, that did not have -- didn't happen in New York.

Here, by contrast, we have without question, the purposeful availment of New York, and let me just step back and just as a digression.

I -- it's a little silly to say that Arcapita could've dictated where those funds went. They had to identify a bank account, Your Honor, they had to, meaning the defendants had to. Our complaint in paragraph 6 alleges that at BISB's direction, the funds were transferred to

Page 93 1 accounts in New York. It's not something made up in our 2 reply. THE COURT: Before we get into that, though, I 3 just want to ask you about your reading of the Lissy (ph) 4 In Lissy, I read that, and again, I know it's under 5 6 302, but let's put that aside for a second. I read that to 7 say that a one -- this one time use, with this use that's at 8 issue can satisfy if there's some other depth to the 9 relationship. And so there, they looked at these other 10 transactions and said, okay, it's not an accident, it's not 11 essentially just coincidental. And so the cases that seem to talk about a one-12 13 time availment seem to focus on one of two things. 14 they are really part and parcel of the actual injury, so a 15 fraud case, here's where the money goes, that's -- it's 16 going into this bank account, so it's really, it's part and 17 parcel of the injury. 18 Or that there's some other depth to it, that is, 19 that this party has availed itself of the forum in -- on 20 other instances, in terms of this one account, and it begins 21 to blur frankly from my point of view, specific and general 22 jurisdiction. 23 MR. LEBLANC: I agree with you, and I had the same question reading Lissy.

THE COURT:

Case 1:15-cv-03828-GBD Document 16-2 Filed 07/16/15 Page 97 of 219 Page 94 1 Second Circuit is binding precedent, but sometimes the 2 binding precedent is not always very clear, how the parties 3 construe that, because it does seem to have an element, Lissy does seem to have an element and the Second Circuit's 4 5 decision in that has an element of the specific in general. 6 So what do you take from that reference to the 7 many bank accounts -- I'm sorry, the many transfers, and how 8 that essentially proves up the specific jurisdiction? 9 MR. LEBLANC: Well, I take two things, Your Honor. 10 I take first of all that those were the facts at the time, 11 that's one. It's just what it is. 12 THE COURT: Right. 13 MR. LEBLANC: What it -- what you cannot conclude 14 from that is that if you only had one, that the Second 15 Circuit or the New York Court of Appeals more appropriately 16 on certification would've come out differently. It didn't 17 rest its holding on the fact that there were many -- there 18 were dozens and dozens. Those were the facts. 19 But the important question I think is what we just 20 walked through which is, what was the relevance of the 21 dozens and dozens of transactions? It was because the relevance was that it was purposeful. It was not coincidental. It was knowing on their part.

Because under Lissy when you actually look at the facts of Lissy, it was a client or a customer of the banks who was transacting business in the U.S. through Lissy's accounts. So it wasn't Lissy itself conducting the business, it was one of its customers.

And so I think the numerosity of the transactions there gave comfort to the Court, and those were the facts they had, but gave comfort to the Court of the purposefulness of the bank's use of a New York account.

And importantly, I think their -- and the cases recognize this, Your Honor, that there's a continuum, that the more directly connected the transaction is, the injury is to the transaction, the less frequency of contact you have to have. That's why if I drive through New York one time in my life, and I get into a car accident, I am subject to the jurisdiction of New York, because the injury alleged is -- it doesn't matter that I've come through here time and time again or never before, that's the best analogy I think you can give to that.

But here, the very depletion of the estate's assets, of which we complain, the very contract of which we seek remedy for breach was consummated pursuant to the transfer of consideration in New York.

THE COURT: I understand that, but that's sort of a but for view which is a little different than it being the actual injury.

So if, for example, the set off was accomplished

Page 96 1 by a transfer of funds that went through New York, and you 2 say, well, the set off is the -- and this gets muddled by the fact that there are many different claims --3 MR. LEBLANC: Correct. 5 THE COURT: -- and we begin to sort of put on 6 different hats, but if you say well that set off is the 7 problem, that's the injury, that's the improper conduct, for 8 lack of a more precise term, then would you have a better 9 argument if that -- if there was some transfer that went 10 through New York for that, as opposed to this transfer seems 11 to be setting the stage for the ultimate problems to come, 12 but doesn't seem to the actual injury, in the way that I 13 understand the cases. 14 So it's one thing to say, hey, I gave money to 15 you, you were supposed to do X, Y, and Z with it, and you 16 said you would transfer it to Switzerland, went through a 17 New York account, well, that's part of the injury, that's 18 part of the actual tort in that case or breach of contract 19 or whatever it is. And here, it seems to be a little 20 further afield, wouldn't you agree? 21 MR. LEBLANC: I would not, Your Honor. The set 22 off is their defense to our claims. We don't plead --23 THE COURT: But there was nothing --MR. LEBLANC: -- the set off. 24 25 THE COURT: But there was nothing -- no one would

Page 97 1 complain that there was something improper about the -- what 2 happened with the funds initially. MR. LEBLANC: Well --3 THE COURT: It was later when the funds were 5 either supposed to be -- the investment was supposed to 6 mature and be paid, and it wasn't paid. 7 MR. LEBLANC: It's --THE COURT: So it's not the initial transfer 8 9 that's the problem, it's the failure to make another 10 transfer back to the debtors. 11 MR. LEBLANC: Well, Your Honor, it's -- the 12 problem and our first two claims are breach of contract and 13 They defend -- we expect when they answer the turnover. 14 complaint, that they will defend on the basis of set off, 15 but that's their defense. 16 The fact that they did a transaction which we 17 believe to be in violation of the automatic stay and Bahrain 18 can't change whether or not they're subject to jurisdiction 19 here, the conduct of which we complain is the depletion of 20 -- is the contract and the fact that they didn't turn over 21 into the United States where they were required to under the 22 terms of the contract, the funds owed to Arcapita. 23 That's -- and the transaction that we're seeking, 24 we're not seeking to unwind the transaction, we're seeking 25 to have it completed. The first step in the consideration

Page 98 1 of that transaction, Your Honor, and there's two steps as it 2 relates as between the parties, there are two steps; 3 Arcapita gives money to them, they give money back to 4 Arcapita. Only one of those steps occurred because they breached the contract and therefore cut it off. 5 6 THE COURT: Right, but --7 MR. LEBLANC: The first of that happened in New 8 York entirely. 9 I agree, but I don't think that's the THE COURT: 10 harm, but I think in isolation -- you still have an 11 argument. You still have an argument to say it's part of --12 you can't have the second part of the transaction without 13 the first part of the transaction, but I think it does remove it a little bit from those cases where it's the 14 15 transfer is the harm. And the transfer is, you took my 16 money and should've made that transfer, and somebody said 17 that transfer was improper. 18 The transfer, this transfer is improper, it's --19 it is the consideration for the transaction that you say 20 wasn't handled appropriately on the back end, which was a 21 fairly short period of time. 22 MR. LEBLANC: But it's not handled appropriately on the back end, it wasn't -- the contract -- it has --23 24 again, exchange of consideration, we can think of it as a 25 loan, we give them money, they give it back to us with a profit.

We gave it to them in New York, they were supposed to give it back to us in New York and they didn't. They just didn't do it. So I -- to suggest that this is somehow in Bahrain, it's just not.

And I would submit, Your Honor, you couldn't find, and when we're suing for a breach of contract, a contract that they purposely availed themselves, they chose to consummate and that's our allegation, and I don't know how they could even contest that they chose which bank account we would send money to them in, we couldn't dictate that for them, they had to open it or talk to somebody to do so, that they chose to send it there. I think you would be the -- and I actually know, you would be the first court ever to say that in that circumstance there isn't personal jurisdiction.

And if you look at the Second Circuit I think one thing that -- I actually wondered this question because Your Honor asked why did this happen in New York, and I had thought the same thing. But if you read the Lissy case, I think it tells you that the decision to do it in New York is of quite some moment because this is what the Court says.

And they're noting the fact that the banks here, or that the customer in that instance in the Lissy case didn't have to use New York, even though it was a U.S. dollar denominated transaction.

In light of the widespread, and this is a quote, in light of the widespread acceptance and availability of U.S. currency LCB could have, as it acknowledges, processed U.S. dollar denominated wire transfers for the Shaheed (ph) account through corresponding accounts anywhere in the world. And then they cite a case which cites a number of places they could've done this, including Saudi Arabia.

So they could've done it anywhere they wanted to including in a neighboring country in the Middle East. And still done it as a U.S. dollar denominated transaction.

But when the money was to be sent from Arcapita to them, and Arcapita had to ask and our complaint alleges they did, they were directed by BISB and by Tadhamon to say where should we put the money, they said, put it in these accounts in New York.

Under those facts, Your Honor, I don't think any court in New York has ever said that's not sufficient.

Now, the other point --

THE COURT: Well, let me ask whether or what significance, if any, is it to you that Arcapita essentially -- it seems to be undisputed that they designated a particular account from which the funds were to go, that is that account in New York, and so you had to find another bank, that is the recipient had to find a bank. You're

1	saying it didn't have to be a New York bank.
2	MR. LEBLANC: It didn't have to be in New York.
3	THE COURT: But so what am I supposed to take
4	from the fact that Arcapita designated this New York account
5	to be the last bank that Arcapita had control of funds and
6	would transfer the funds somewhere to? Does it matter at
7	all?
8	MR. LEBLANC: Well, I think it makes a huge
9	difference to this case, because in the absence of that
10	designation, presumably that money would have been here five
11	days later when the company filed for bankruptcy. It would
12	have been part of not just part of the estate, but would
13	have been physically present in New York.
14	But the simple fact, Your Honor, is that the fact
15	that Arcapita was using a bank here, this is a completely
16	different case. If they said, okay, you're using JPMorgan
17	Chase here, wire it to us to our account in Saudi Arabia,
18	our U.S. dollar denominated account in Saudi Arabia. They
19	could have done that. That's what the Lissy court says.
20	THE COURT: Well, I guess what I'm asking is, does
21	the use of one New York corresponding bank account have
22	anything to do with the other and you're saying no.
23	MR. LEBLANC: No.
24	THE COURT: Because, for example, say Arcapita
25	didn't designate its New York this New York bank to be involved. And say they, through whatever -- it went through various financial institutions, but it never went through a bank in New York. And so when the funds finally left the Arcapita side, it left from a bank in Saudi Arabia and it was the defendants who said, send it to us in New York. So you're saying that essentially is factual indistinguishable from your case? It doesn't matter that Arcapita --

MR. LEBLANC: I am, Your Honor. Because there's no indication -- and the Lissy court says exactly the opposite of that, that you can do U.S. dollar denominated transactions outside of the U.S.

So I don't know of any reason why the defendants couldn't have identified in response to Arcapita saying, it's coming from our JPMorgan Chase account and we want it to go back to our JPMorgan Chase account, they couldn't have said sent it to our account in London.

There's no suggestion -- and we're here on a motion to dismiss, so you have to accept the facts pled in the complaint. There's no suggestion that that couldn't have happened. And that's a very different case than the one that's facing us here.

Because in that instance, if the money is just coming out of the U.S. then there's a real question as to purposeful availment, I think that's a very fair question.

But the banks -- the only BISB and Tadhamon could have said where they would receive the money. And they said, when asked that question, here it is in New York. That, I think, is dispositive of it. And Your Honor would be cutting the legs out of personal jurisdiction if you said something other than that.

And let me respond to the Maxwell suggestion because Maxwell doesn't deal in the least bit with personal jurisdiction. It was Sochan (ph) and Barclays that were defendants in that who are the subject of jurisdiction in the United States. But the facts actually matter there as well. Because in that instance, the reason that the Second Circuit found that comity should have the case proceed in the parallel proceeding that was pending in the UK is because the debtor rather, transferred funds out of a UK account into a U.S. account.

So when you're talking about the extraterritorial reach of U.S. law, the fact that the debtor's estate in the UK was depleted is the relevant inquiry when you're talking about the extraterritoriality -- extraterritorial reach of -- and just to be clear, it's only the preferenced statute there.

But here, that's -- the destination -- if it was a personal jurisdiction question, the destination of the money would be the relevant question. And so Maxwell doesn't have -- nobody suggests that it does deal with personal

Case 1:15-cv-03828-GBD Document 16-2 Filed 07/16/15 Page 107 of 219 Page 104 1 jurisdiction but -- and I don't know why it was raised in 2 that context, but just to be clear, the facts are that if 3 the plaintiff or the defendant here designated a New York bank account, that's the relevant question. 4 5 Now, one other point to make about Lissy, Your 6 Honor is, the allegations in Lissy were about a number of 7 transactions that constituted violations of the anti-terror -- anti-money laundering and anti-terror act. There was --8 9 so the allegations turned on the number of transactions 10 here. We have a single transaction, a onetime use of a bank 11 account that is the subject of the lawsuit. 12 So, inevitably, our facts are going to be 13 different than those that were present in Lissy. Our facts, 14 frankly, are going to be more like what was present in the 15 Correspondent Services case that I read to Your Honor from 16 before where one account -- one transaction was found to be 17 sufficient. 18 Now, let me turn -- let me talk about extraterritoriality, Your Honor, unless the Court doesn't 19 20 want me to. 21 THE COURT: One question about -- before we leave 22 personal jurisdiction --23 MR. LEBLANC: Yes.

THE COURT: -- is what do you want me to make of your mention of discovery and --

MR.	LEBLANC:	Sure.
-----	----------	-------

THE COURT: -- and how this would work?

MR. LEBLANC: Your Honor, I don't think -- we don't think you need to give -- grant us discovery, because we think Your Honor must comply -- must conclude that there's jurisdiction on the basis of the transaction.

However, there is -- it is the -- if you can have an elephant in the room in a declaration, in each of the declarations there's an elephant in the room. What they ignore. They give you all sorts of facts that they contend are helpful for them, but what they completely ignore is what throughout their brief they contend to be the relevant question. They don't tell the Court or us how frequently these institutions use the U.S. banking system. Yet they contend that the relevant inquiry is how frequently do they use the U.S. banking system.

They tell you, they don't have employees here, they don't have branches here. They don't solicit business. All of that's fine and well, but when they turn to the question of what it actually matters for the Court, they ignore that.

Your Honor, in the Lissy case, there was -- I think it was a year of discovery on the jurisdictional question. What we would suggest, if the Court disagrees with us on the application of New York law to this question and we think the Court shouldn't, but if it did, we should be permitted to take discovery to understand the use of correspondent bank accounts in the United States, because to the extent that it's dozens and dozens of times, the Court has no evidence before it whatsoever.

And that's not a fishing expedition here, Your Honor. Because we know, as a matter of fact, that they used it one time. That they directed it be used in this instance. Now, it happens to be in our view sufficient, that alone is sufficient. But to the extent that they think or the Court thinks that the relevant question is, do they use it frequently, has it been used dozens and dozens of times? Well, let us take that discovery. And that's what we suggest with respect to discovery, although, again, Your Honor, I think Your Honor should dispose of it without the need to resort to discovery.

THE COURT: But I guess what you are -- and your requests I should understand as being consistent with the Lissy case, in other words, that's what Lissy talked about, which is these other -- the other uses of this account?

MR. LEBLANC: If that's -- if the Court were to conclude that on this -- on the record before it, on the complaint, and the specific transaction that we're challenging and its connection to New York, that that was insufficient and that what would have to be shown is what was shown in Lissy that as a matter of fact, there were dozens and dozens of transactions, then yes we should be permitted to take discovery.

To understand -- and that's not -- we're not talking about burdensome onerous discovery. I suspect it was a conscious decision when you're submitting an affidavit on personal jurisdiction where the issue is how many -- their argument is the frequency with which they use it and they don't say anything about it, I can leap to what that might mean. But if the Court thinks that's necessary then we should be entitled to understand that.

THE COURT: All right. And just to circle back on the one other issue that we discussed, the notion about what Lissy talks about in this sort of melding of specific and personal jurisdiction, I don't know if you have any views about how to understand that.

My own view, which I don't know if it's correct, was the best I could come up with, is that it's a function of the fact that they're applying a particular New York Long Arm Statute, which is what it is and therefore you don't get into, sort of, the constitutional question as Pacific versus General (ph) you apply the Long Arm Statute, which in fact might have elements of both. I don't know, but I'd be interested in the parties' view on that.

MR. LEBLANC: I'll tell you my view, Your Honor, and it's what I suggested before is that it is a continuum between the two. You have the very clear -- the car accident in New York, that's the most direct specific, the furthest, you know, at the other end of the spectrum is somebody who travels to New York twice a week, but doesn't live here and commits a tort in Connecticut, but is subject to personal jurisdiction here because they're always in New York. That's the classic general jurisdictional argument.

I think it's a spectrum as between the two.

That's how I would read Lissy because I actually asked the same question. I said, is this -- because Lissy is -- it is under the New York specific jurisdiction prong. But they note the relationship between the transactions and the tort that's alleged. And the tort, of course is, occurred entirely elsewhere. The physical -- we're talking about physical injuries here.

Here, this is a transaction that we're seeking recovery with respect to that occurred entirely in New York. The fact that it's a onetime transaction doesn't change anything. It just means that the only relevant data point is when the parties did the one thing that they had to do under the contract, which is transfer the money, what did -- where did they do it? They did it in New York. That's the relevant inquiry. The fact that it was negotiated elsewhere, other laws applied, none of that, in our view, matters, Your Honor. Because the consummation of the transaction, it's not like they met in the airport lounge and talked about the contract. When they decided where to send the money, they -- Arcapita sent it from New York and they received it, at their request, in New York.

So I don't know how much Your Honor wants me to talk about the extraterritoriality because it is beyond belief to me that anyone would suggest that turnover actions or the automatic stay do not apply extraterritorially. That is not front page news.

Just in the American Bankruptcy -- the ABI

If the Court were to say the automatic stay doesn't apply extraterritorially, that would be extraordinary.

In other words, what that means, let's just be clear about what that means. If a debtor before the Court -- if American Airlines has gates in London and somebody goes to London to try to seize them, this Court would be without power to prevent that from happening, that's what they argue.

Now, it is critical, I think, Your Honor, to look very carefully at Maxwell, all of the various decisions, except for the Second Circuit's, because that doesn't deal at all with the question of extraterritoriality. The only decision, which is not binding on this Court that deals with

Page 110 1 that question of extraterritoriality is the district court's 2 decision not binding on this Court. 3 When you look at those decisions, the only 4 question presented is whether 547 of the Bankruptcy Code, 5 the preference statute applies extraterritorially. That is 6 the only question presented. And I think, Your Honor, I 7 think just to read, page 11 of their reply brief I think reflects just an astonishing misstatement of the law. And 8 9 it's worth going through almost every paragraph. I don't 10 know if the Court has it there. I have copies. 11 THE COURT: I do. No, I have it. Thank you. 12 Give me two seconds to find it. 13 MR. LEBLANC: Of course. 14 THE COURT: Page 11? 15 MR. LEBLANC: Yes. And it's the paragraph that 16 begins, plaintiff asserts. 17 THE COURT: I'm there. 18 MR. LEBLANC: Okay. So the first sentence just 19 states what we assert. I think it's a fair recitation. 20 second sentence says plaintiff is wrong, I disagree. 21 sentence, it is quote, well established that generic terms 22 like any and every do not rebut the presumption against 23 extraterritoriality. 24 Your Honor, that sentence -- that quote literally 25 refers to a statute that says any civil action. That's what the statute says.

By contrast, Section 541 of the Bankruptcy Code says property wherever located, wherever located. There is simply no comparison between generic terms like any or every, like any civil action and property wherever located.

The next sentence -- and this one we have to break into two clauses because they're completely different arguments. Plaintiff's argument was squarely rejected in Maxwell, which held the wherever located language did not meet the stringent Morrison standard for clear intent. And I'll stop there.

That is, first of all, the Morrison decision was issued 17 years after Judge Brozman's decision in Maxwell and 16 years after Judge Scheindlin's decision in the district court. So they obviously weren't opining on the Morrison decision.

Moreover, no one of those decisions says in any respect that the wherever located language was not -- did not express a clear intent. That is simply untrue.

Instead, what is correct is the second clause of that sentence.

The Maxwell decision, both one and two, the district court and the bankruptcy court does in fact say that because of the Second Circuit's Colonial Realty decision, which deals with the question of whether avoidance actions become property of the estate upon the filing of the case, whether those are property of the estate could not apply to claims for preferential transfer, since property which has been preferentially transferred does not become property of the estate until recovered.

That's just -- that's correct, Your Honor. That's what Maxwell says and I'll turn to that in a second. But the first half of that sentence is demonstrably wrong.

The next sentence -- in the next sentence is just a quotation from Maxwell so that is what it is. The last sentence, "As the Maxwell Court recognized, the same reasoning precludes using the wherever located language in the Code's definition of property of the estate as a basis for extraterritorial application of claims made pursuant to Section 362 for violation of the automatic stay and they quote to Maxwell, 170 B.R. at 812. And Your Honor, that's just wrong. Let me read to you from the decision.

And again just to step back from this, we can use these words, but this is their contention that the automatic stay does not extend outside the continental United States and the two external states we have.

Judge Brozman says -- and this is presumably on page 812 what they're suggesting. It says, "And for that same reason the extraterritorial application of Section 362, which serves to protect the property of the estate wherever located does not help the joint administrators either." And she cites to the In Re McLean Industries (ph) decision.

So, Your Honor, what she's saying is that the extraterritorial -- that Section 362 applies extraterritorially, but it doesn't help the joint administrators who are asserting a preference claim only in that instance. And there's no real dispute. One of the more recent Madoff decisions cited in our papers, Your Honor, goes through a long discussion of whether Section 362 applies extraterritorially.

And then the last part of this sentence, "And likewise would prevent extraterritorial application with respect to plaintiff's turnover in other code claims," demonstrably wrong, Your Honor. The very same part of the sentence, footnote 16 of Judge Brozman's decision.

Since the transferred property was property of the estate and since our bankruptcy laws permit recovery of estate property wherever located, there was a rationale for the extraterritorial application of the statute. In other words, turnover is not subject to the same analysis with respect to extraterritoriality as is a preference claim.

And if this wasn't clear, Your Honor, the analysis that I just walked through is exactly the analysis that is done in the Madoff decision and most importantly, the decision that inexplicably they completely ignore in their reply brief, which is Judge Lifland's most recent decision in the Picard v. Madoff cases.

Judge Lifland spends the last four pages of that decision, pages 25 to 29 on the Lexis printed version, discussing why Maxwell doesn't apply to preference actions in circumstances that are indistinguishable from the circumstances we have here.

Now, here's the only area that there's area for fair debate even, Your Honor. Not with respect to whether a 541 applies extraterritoriality. In other words, whether the Court could order a debtor to bring property from outside the U.S. into the U.S., or whether 362 applies extraterritoriality so the Court could order somebody hurting a debtor's property outside the United States.

There's room for fair debate whether 547 applies.

And the reason there's room for fair debate there, and again, that's our pleading in the alternative, is because of the -- because there's questions as to whether a preference action is property of the estate for the purposes of extraterritoriality.

Now, Judge Lifland in the most recent decision, that's again cited in our papers, goes through an extensive analysis as to why -- how he distinguishes Judge Brozman and Judge Scheindlin's decision in Maxwell.

And here's the key element and I mentioned this before, Your Honor. The key distinction, because he notes that the transfer that was at issue in the Madoff case was between, as it turns out the very same two New York banks that are at issue here, JPMorgan transferred to HSBC just by coincidence.

But he walks through it and he notes the fundamental difference between the Madoff case and the Maxwell case is that the depletion of the assets occurred from the United States. That's the distinction.

So -- and Judge Lifland says he's not disagreeing with Judge Brozman's decision in the Madoff decision, but reaches a different conclusion based on that fundamentally different fact, Your Honor.

And here's -- the bottom line is, I don't know how you could read our opposition and not even mention this recent decision in response to it. And I don't know how one could even contend that the automatic stay and that the turnover actions are even questionably within the reach of this Court, that this Court's orders don't apply extraterritorially in those two respects.

And even without even mentioning the fact that the breach of contract claim doesn't have anything to do with extraterritorial application. This Court couldn't say, I can't do a breach of contract case because it involves a contract from Bahrain. That's not even part of the

It's -- the question is whether there's a statutory reach to extend statutory provisions extraterritoriality. So it doesn't apply at all to the contract case and they're simply wrong and about as wrong as one could stand before a bankruptcy court and be in suggesting that your automatic stay doesn't work outside these waters.

Now, I can talk, if Your Honor wants me to about comity, but it's just -- it's a flawed premise, the notion of comity. There's no reason -- Judge Lifland in the Madoff decision, in the Picard v. Madoff decision notes that there was a request for comity there. There actually were proceedings elsewhere, but there were no proceedings with respect to that debtor. So a similar situation to what we have here there were proceedings in the Cayman Islands. But Judge Lifland simply dismisses it because he says that's an affirmative defense, we'll deal with that later.

So it's not an issue for this Court today, but fundamentally Your Honor would be -- I don't know of an instance where a court would defer on the basis of comity to something that doesn't exist.

I can understand the argument under a for nonconvenes to be sure, but on the basis of comity. And even if that applied at all, even if the principle applied, under

Page 117 1 no circumstance does it -- have has it ever been applied to 2 a breach of contract case. 3 That's an argument if they want to make it under 4 for non-convenes, they could make it with respect to the 5 breach of contract, but the principle doesn't even apply to a breach of contract. 7 Now, unless the Court has any other questions, I 8 think the Court --9 THE COURT: I don't. 10 MR. LEBLANC: -- should reject the motion to 11 They're clearly within Your Honor's personal dismiss. 12 jurisdiction, and Your Honor's reach, the reach of the 13 Bankruptcy Code certainly touches these actions. Thank you, 14 Your Honor. 15 THE COURT: Thank you. 16 MS. ADLER: Your Honor, I would like to respond 17 briefly. THE COURT: 18 Sure. 19 MS. ADLER: Thank you. Unless you need a lunch 20 break. THE COURT: No, let's go ahead. 21 22 MS. ADLER: The first point is to call this a New 23 York transaction on the jurisdictional point is simply 24 assuming a conclusion. It is clearly not looking at the 25 totality of the transaction. It is not looking at the document which reflect that the monies were ordered through Bahraini things and ended up in Bahrain the same day.

So the point is that those monies probably spent more time -- less time in New York than we have just devoted thus far this morning and early afternoon to talking about it. That's thing one.

The beef again, and I think counsel appeared to fudge it, was it wasn't the set-off of antecedent debt, it was the fact that we didn't pay them back, and then set off the amounts down the road.

Had we paid them back, they wouldn't contend -- we would've done so from Bahrain, and they wouldn't contended that anything happened in New York.

Again, when you look at the cases, the mere receipt of funds in New York without anything more on a one time basis is simply not good enough, and you've misstated Leechy. For one thing Leechy, the district court which granted the motion to dismiss denied discovery.

The Court -- the case then -- there was no discovery in Leechy. The case then was appealed to the Second Circuit. The Second Circuit certified it to the New York Court of Appeals, and then thereafter, it went back to the Second Circuit. There was no basis for discovery there, for the same reasons that we've already discussed.

And in the discussion of discovery, counsel was conflating personal -- specific jurisdiction and general jurisdiction. How many times the defendants may or may not have used a New York correspondent bank account would speak only to systematic general jurisdiction.

THE COURT: Right. Well, that gets back to my question about how you read Leechy, and why does Leechy talk about that in what seems to be a specific jurisdiction context.

MS. ADLER: Leechy is a specific jurisdictional case. And the cases that -- the 2000 case Correspondent Bank way pre-Leechy, was a 302(a) case.

THE COURT: Right.

MS. ADLER: It was about were they doing business here. And again, as Your Honor correctly perceived, the issue was not only the multitude of times they used the securities account, the defendant, you know, but also the fact that they were doing unauthorized securities trades in it. There is always something more.

And in Leechy --

THE COURT: Well, but let me -- when the case law contemplates jurisdictional discovery, it doesn't cabin it off to say you can only have this, you can only have that.

It, like all discovery is tied to what's going on in the case. And while it's more limited, so you have to essentially have some sort of an offering or a proffer as to

Page 120 1 why discovery is appropriate, what I understand here, the 2 request is to the extent I disagree with plaintiff's view 3 about personal jurisdiction to allow them some discovery on the use of correspondent bank accounts in New York. 4 5 Now, that may lead to a claim that there's 6 specific jurisdiction, it might lead to a claim there's 7 general jurisdiction, might lead to some claim that there's 8 Leechy jurisdiction, which seems to be straddling --9 MS. ADLER: I think --10 THE COURT: -- the line. So what's your response 11 to that? 12 MS. ADLER: I think that that is one desperate, 13 and two, in this specific instance it would be misplaced. 14 Because counsel keeps misrepresenting that the basis for 15 this jurisdiction is that the payments that the defendants 16 did not make were to be made to New York accounts. But, in 17 fact, those were New York accounts again designated by 18 Arcapita. 19 And if you look at --20 THE COURT: Well, but I understand the argument 21 there --22 MS. ADLER: But literally Arcapita says, pay us 23 back to this account. 24 THE COURT: I know, I understand that. 25 MS. ADLER: Okay.

THE COURT: But there's a New York encounter on Arcapita's side, but the argument is, and I'm not saying I agree with it or disagree with it, but I understand the argument to be that put that aside, what's really relevant is what's on the defendant's side for the receipt of the funds.

MS. ADLER: I understand, but look at the Tadhamon case, for example, Tadhamon doesn't have a New York correspondent bank account, didn't have any correspondent bank account. It had to use the HSBC bank account of its bank in Bahrain.

And you look at the use of it in Leechy, the defendant bank was alleged to have used the New York correspondent bank many, many times to disseminate funds to terrorists, to do something bad.

Here, the use of the account wasn't again anything bad. So Tadhamon doesn't even have a correspondent bank account. Leechy -- I mean, in BISB which used it the one time, but obviously that wouldn't get you to specific jurisdiction, and in general jurisdiction, that's just irrelevant. You don't have anything that overcomes -- we don't solicit business in the United States. We don't do business with people in the United States, we don't avail ourselves of -- BISB does not avail itself of the United States. You don't have the something more.

So to just kind of pull something out of thin air to keep a case alive, basically out of hope or conjuncture, literally the cases say that is not good enough, that's really, really important. And you can't just presume your conclusion by citing to depletion of the estate in New York, when the defendants reasonably, I don't think anybody disagrees with that, have no basis to assume that they will be hailed into court, and have every basis to believe that under Bahraini law they can after the petition was filed, set off amounts due to them.

I mean, those are -- that's just wrong. So I want to point out again the misstatements about Leechy. Because Leechy really does turn on the recurriness and deliberateness, and it says that minimum contacts again, you know, have to exist where the defendant purposely avails itself. And you have to look at the jurisdictional inquiry focused on the affiliation between the forum and the underlying controversy. We don't have that affiliation here.

These were not consummated transactions in New York. They were -- there was a tiny New York piece that was a predicate to the rest of the transaction. And if the real bit of the transaction was the purchase of investments by BISB and Tadhamon as agents, again as agents for Arcapita, those purchases, the value exchanged happened outside of the United States. They happened in Bahrain, they happened where the things were made.

And if you look at the BISB -- just to make it really plain, if you look at the agreement, that is the agreement under which plaintiffs sued BISB, and it's attached as Exhibit A to BISB's moving papers, it's the agreement.

And you look at paragraph 4.4, it says, "Once payment --"

THE COURT: Hold on one minute, let me get there.

MS. ADLER: I -- Exhibit 82, BISB's notice of motion.

THE COURT: All right. Okay.

MS. ADLER: The fact, and I'm showing you this,
Your Honor, to make the point that these were not transactions that were completed in any remote sense in New York.

If you look at 4.4 the parties agreed that once such payment reaches the agent's account, and here, that was the agent's account in Bahrain, the agent being BISB, the agent shall complete the purchase of commodities, that happened outside the United States and notified the bank that was Arcapita of such purpose, whereupon title to the commodities shall pass to the bank, who shall thereupon become the owner of the commodities.

Page 124 1 The point is that this was just the facilitation, 2 and it could've happened anywhere. You don't give the purposeful availment, and the monies, and this is not in 3 4 dispute, get immediately transferred to Bahrain, which again 5 distinguishes it from Leechy. 6 In Leechy, the monies go through New York, and 7 then they go to the purported terrorist organizations 8 supposedly to shield them from view, that's not the case 9 here. Arcapita wants to do them in dollars, they ask for 10 11 the -- they asked for us to do it. And if you would look at 12 likewise the Arcapita notice of motion, Your Honor, Exhibit 13 B, which is the schedule that speaks to these transfers with 14 respect to the transfer from Arcapita to Tadhamon. You tell 15 me when you're ready. 16 THE COURT: So you're asking me to look at --17 MS. ADLER: It's Tadhamon --Tadhamon's motion, okay. 18 THE COURT: 19 MS. ADLER: -- motion, Exhibit B, please. 20 THE COURT: Okay. All right. 21 MS. ADLER: It says the first schedule at the top. 22 THE COURT: Got you. 23 MS. ADLER: Page -- and it says page 7 at the 24 bottom. 25 You'll see that Tadhamon is writing at the top in this offer to Arcapita, and it says we refer to the master agreement, we know that was, and your instructions of today, you, Arcapita's instructions of today, in which you indicated your wish to deposit an amount with us for investment by us and Islamic transactions on your behalf.

And then it says, please authorize -- paragraph 6, please authorize in respect of the investment amount, the 10 million to be transferred by Arcapita, please authorize us to debit your account with us or credit the amount to our following account, receiving bank, the bank that was getting the money, Khaleeji Commercial Bank, Bahrain. And then it gives its SWIFT number.

The beneficiary is Tadhamon. The intermediary, the one-time intermediary is HSBC, not even Tadhamon's correspondent bank.

And then in Arcapita's acceptance, which is the form at the bottom, Arcapita writes -- asks that on maturity date, when the monies were to be repurchased by Tadhamon, we want to receive the dollars at our account at JPMorgan Chase, and again, in New York, and again it gives the SWIFT code information.

These are instructions coming from Arcapita, you cannot bootstrap the actions of the Bahraini debtor Arcapita to become, to morph into the purposeful availment independent availment by its agent in these transactions which were BISB and Tadhamon.

Now, also you have to understand the policy reasons. If anybody, any time, anyone ever used a correspondent bank account on a single -- a foreign entity in a foreign transaction between foreign entities, a correspondent bank account in New York for a single transaction, there would never not be jurisdiction. There are no floodgates here, and it's really important to understand that. It seems to me that some of plaintiff's arguments are overbroad like that.

So, for example, if depletion of the estate in itself could overcome objections to jurisdiction or territoriality, that would mean that any time a foreign entity determined to file bankruptcy there would never -- you would automatically have jurisdiction, and there would never be any extra-territoriality inquiry. That is really not the law. Maxwell makes that really clear.

I think that's the case. Maxwell says clear,

Judge Scheindlin, that augmentation of the estate is not by itself a reason to do it. These cases are easily distinguished from the Madoff cases that plaintiff cited toward the end.

In that case, you had a U.S. debtor, you had overseas sometimes transferees who had done business in the Chase case through her father-in-law, a U.S. agent who had used New York bank accounts to receive monies, and make investments. They were wholly distinguishable in terms and often had signed and Judge Lifland made a big deal about this, often had signed agreements with Madoff Securities which provided for a New York choice of law, and sometimes a New York forum. So those are obviously entirely distinguishable cases.

The exchange of consideration as I've just shown was really the monies after they were received in Bahrain and the title passing to the investments in commodities in BISB's case, and in treasury securities into Tadhamon's that also -- Tadhamon received in -- that also, forgive me, Arcapita received in Bahrain.

We do contest that the wherever located in property of the estate has been presumed to be okay, and you know, to be presumed, should always be acceptable. And I also want to --

THE COURT: Well, let me ask you about that. I understand your 547 argument, and I think the parties while they vehemently disagree with each other, sort of agree what they're arguing, which is you rely on Maxwell and some statements from the Second Circuit, and the other side relies on distinguishing those cases as Judge Rakoff has recently done. So I think I just need to look at that.

But I think everyone agrees what it says. But for

Page 128 1 property of the estate, and the automatic stay, again, I 2 think maybe you could argue that it's not property of the 3 estate and that's a separate argument. But accepting 4 something as true, if you accept it as property of the 5 estate, you accept that proffer, well, I -- and the 6 Bankruptcy Code says property wherever located, you're not 7 trying to augment the estate, you're just trying to deal 8 with the property. 9 And again, you may have beef with that whole 10 concept --11 I do, Your Honor --MS. ADLER: 12 THE COURT: -- I understand that. 13 MS. ADLER: -- yeah, I do. 14 THE COURT: But I don't know that that beef -- why 15 is that beef something that isn't addressed here, if I have 16 to take those allegations as true, and the Code talks about 17 property wherever located. I understand your beef to be 18 it's not property. Are you --19 MS. ADLER: I'm saying something further than 20 that. 21 THE COURT: All right. 22 MS. ADLER: I'm saying that wherever located does 23 not pass Morrison muster at least as applied on these facts. 24 THE COURT: But if I do that, haven't I thrown the 25 baby with the bath water on large Chapter 11 cases?

1 MS. ADLER: No, I don't think so. I think that --2 I think the Supreme Court is ultimately going to have to 3 decide this, and I think that when you look at the use of foreign commerce and everything else in the RICO statues and 4 5 in the alien tort statutes, and the language that was held 6 insufficient to have -- insufficient to indicate Congress' 7 intent that a statute extraterritorial apply, you have that. 8 But I think on this case, Your Honor, just so you 9 don't get worried about -- get worried unnecessarily, I 10 think that these transfers under Maxwell are so clearly non-11 domestic, that you don't get there in any event. I don't 12 think --13 THE COURT: Well, that's an extraterritoriality argument, right? 14 15 MS. ADLER: It is. 16 THE COURT: Well, I mean, here's my problem, much 17 like the argument earlier that someone said and usually this 18 is how this goes, right, someone says, this is a very narrow 19 request I'm making in this case under these specific set of 20 facts, and somebody else, the consequences for this decision 21 are horrible. 22 And in that earlier case, the argument was about what a plan means or doesn't mean. And here if parties are 23 24 -- if the idea that there's a dispute about whose funds, 25 they are somehow undoes the ability to address the property

Page 130 1 of the estate, either turnover or automatic stay, I --2 MS. ADLER: Let me say it a different way and I 3 think that this is what Judge Scheindlin said in the district court Maxwell decision. If you have a case -- and 4 5 she was quoting Judge Brozman, if you have transfers between 6 foreign debtors and foreign entities where the center of 7 gravity of that transfer is clearly foreign as I think is indisputable in the case here, notwithstanding other 8 9 opinions. 10 It is not -- the bankruptcy law doesn't give you 11 and the wherever located doesn't give you carte blanche to 12 go get all property all over the world. 13 THE COURT: But that's in the preference context, 14 isn't it? 15 MS. ADLER: No, I think it's in all contexts. I 16 think it would be --17 THE COURT: But that case was in the preference context, wasn't it? 18 MS. ADLER: No, there were also avoidance claims, 19 20 they're not directly addressed, but they actually are 21 addressed at some point. Hold on just one minute. There 22 were avoidance claims raised as well, and they're kind of subsumed in that discussion. 23 But she talks about --24 25 THE COURT: I thought your response was going to be that under the facts and circumstances, if there's no dispute, based on the allegations, and a Court is able to make a determination something is or isn't property, that that's -- you can decide whether the turnover and you can look at the territoriality at that point, but I'm just -- I'd be interested in what you're pointing to tell me that that. I understand that rationale and the context of preference, and I would just --

MS. ADLER: No, I would point Your Honor to again some of the same language that we looked at a moment ago when counsel was up here. But if you look at footnote 16 and some of the language that follows it in Judge Scheindlin's decision, and I so I'm at 170 B.R. at 812, note 16.

She talks about 362 is dinged because of property of the estate wherever located, and she uses the word relocated. In that footnote, she distinguishes a case that's In Re Bevel, and she says that since the transferred property was property of the estate and our bankruptcy laws permit recovery of estate property wherever located, there was rationale.

But she says that that case is distinguishable, and that was in a securities setting. And we now know that the securities laws 10(b)(5) are not extraterritorial, may not -- do not have a sufficient indication of Congress'

Page 132 1 So I think that, you know, you get there. 2 I'm not following that last part. Why 3 her statement basically saying is -- seems to be supporting the notion that if it's property of the estate, 362 gives --4 5 MS. ADLER: Let me say --6 THE COURT: -- the ability to do this --7 MS. ADLER: Let me even give --THE COURT: -- and I don't --8 9 MS. ADLER: Let me even give you a better quote 10 that's perhaps clearer, Your Honor. 11 THE COURT: All right. 12 MS. ADLER: Further down on the same page, so I'm 13 at 170 B.R. -- but now I'm in the text, 812, this is Judge 14 Brozman, I'm sorry, says, "I do not agree however that in 15 permitting foreign debtors to avail themselves of our law 16 Congress unquestionably must have meant to imbue those 17 debtors with the right to apply our avoidance laws 18 extraterritorially. To embrace the reigning of those making 19 that argument," in that case, the joint administrators and 20 the examiner, "would be to ignore Ramco (ph)," which you may 21 remember was a predicate, "which requires an unambiguous 22 expression of Congressional intent gleamed from the language of the statute or other guides to its interpretation." 23 24 Here, there is no such unmistakable evidence of 25 Congressional intent.

Page 133 1 THE COURT: But you're referring to avoidance 2 actions, right? 3 MS. ADLER: I am. I thought that's what you were 4 asking me. 5 THE COURT: No, I was asking about 362, the 6 automatic stay --7 MS. ADLER: Well, 362 again we get back to the property of the estate, if you don't buy into it being 8 9 property of the estate. 10 THE COURT: Yeah, but that's what I'm saying. But 11 how do I --12 MS. ADLER: That property of the estate has the 13 same wherever located language. And that language --14 THE COURT: Let me back up. Let me see if I can 15 frame the -- my understanding is that there's a body of law 16 about preferences that says, can it be extraterritorial 17 because you're bringing something into the estate, it's not 18 property of the estate, Congress did not make clear that 19 that applied extraterritorially, and therefore, I've been 20 here long enough, I know that word rolls off my tongue unlike earlier, so that's something that's -- the plaintiffs 21 22 disagree with that, but that's one way certainly to read 23 those cases. All right. 24 But 362 and turnover are all about they're defined 25 as property of the estate. So my question for you is how do

Page 134 1 you get there? I --2 But you need again --MS. ADLER: 3 THE COURT: -- can see that you are essentially 4 saying it's not property of the estate, but is that a motion 5 to dismiss inquiry? 6 MS. ADLER: No, that is a challenge to whether 7 wherever located is good enough to meet the Morrison 8 standard for clear Congressional intent. THE COURT: Yeah. And I'm -- but I'm -- I mean, I 9 10 see you frame --11 MS. ADLER: And I don't think there's any case, by 12 the way, that says it is. 13 THE COURT: I've got to say I have a real problem 14 with that. 15 MS. ADLER: And --16 THE COURT: I understand augmentation of the 17 estate, and I understand your argument to say this isn't 18 property of the estate, let's get to Bahraini law. Bahraini 19 law, that's the substance law. But if you open -- there is 20 a floodgates argument to make that would say that people 21 then, for any dispute --22 MS. ADLER: Agreed. 23 THE COURT: -- in any large 11 will say, we say 24 it's not property of the estate for whatever reason, you 25 have no jurisdiction, you have no ability to look at this

Page 135 1 extraterritorially. 2 MS. ADLER: I hear you, Your Honor, but I think in 3 this case, and I don't know if this would be a floodgate 4 thinner downer as it were, because you've got these foreign 5 things without jurisdiction in the first instance, you 6 probably never get to that question. 7 THE COURT: But isn't that a --8 MS. ADLER: No, because you --9 THE COURT: Wait, say that --10 MS. ADLER: Someone --11 THE COURT: -- again. 12 MS. ADLER: A debtor could not be asserting 362 13 claims in setting or the Court could not be hearing them, 14 determining them, if the Court did not have personal 15 jurisdiction over those defendants. 16 THE COURT: Yeah, but those are two separate 17 things. 18 MS. ADLER: Agreed. 19 THE COURT: You've done them in the alternative. 20 MS. ADLER: I agree. 21 THE COURT: My problem is taking them individually 22 as an independent basis. We may have gone as far as we can 23 with this. 24 MS. ADLER: But again, and I quess the other point is one I made earlier --25

Page 136 1 THE COURT: I --2 MS. ADLER: -- which is if you've got a debtor 3 with foreign parties in foreign transactions were foreign 4 law is going to govern, then the remedy is over there. It's 5 in the foreign states. 6 THE COURT: Well, that's a comity argument. 7 MS. ADLER: No, but it also speaks --THE COURT: But --8 9 MS. ADLER: -- to your concern that a bankruptcy 10 court or a debtor might not have a remedy, that's where I'm 11 going with it. 12 THE COURT: No, that's not my concern. 13 MS. ADLER: Okay. 14 No. My concern is taking each one of THE COURT: 15 these arguments in isolation as an independent basis that 16 has been asserted for dismissal, that I have concerns 17 looking independently at your argument that 362 and turnover should be dismissed because of lack of -- because of 18 19 extraterritoriality. 20 MS. ADLER: But --21 THE COURT: And I understand you've raised --22 MS. ADLER: I am. 23 THE COURT: -- you've now talked about it when I 24 respond -- when I've raised that, you mention personal 25 jurisdiction, you've mentioned sort of comity concerns.

Page 137 1 You've mentioned -- I'm not asking you to agree --2 MS. ADLER: And I --3 THE COURT: -- with me on the results here. I'm 4 just trying to isolate something and there are times when 5 counsel doesn't want to answer a question because it's not a 6 wonderful way to --7 MS. ADLER: No, no, no, no. 8 THE COURT: -- debate the issue. 9 MS. ADLER: And again, and again, 362 is dealt 10 with in, you know, Judge Brozman's decision on --11 THE COURT: I think we've gone as far as we'll go 12 on that. 13 MS. ADLER: Okay. Let me just see if there's 14 anything else that work making you stay any longer for. 15 We've discussed the exchange of -- I think the real point is 16 that the jurisdictional stuff is all of that bootstrapped 17 onto defendant's by Arcapita. And that's not good enough, 18 it has to be independent. I don't see the purposeful 19 availment. I don't believe you -- we have facts that 20 warrant what would indeed be a fishing expedition here. 21 I don't -- Leechy provides no authority for it. 22 In Leechy, there was no discovery contrary to counsel's 23 suggestion, and I think you can wholly distinguish as we've 24 just discussed the Madoff cases. Thank you. 25 THE COURT: All right. Thank you very much.

Page 138 1 Briefly. 2 MR. LEBLANC: Sure. Thank you, Your Honor, I 3 greatly appreciate it. Less than two minutes I suspect, Your Honor. 5 THE COURT: All right. 6 MR. LEBLANC: Let me -- I just want to make I 7 think three points. The first, Your Honor, I think Your 8 Honor is correctly thinking about the jurisdictional 9 question as to whether or not -- what is the relevant 10 transaction. The point in the Leechy discussion is there 11 were dozens and dozens of transactions, of which they were 12 all complained. They complained about the transfer of 13 dozens and dozens of things. Here, we complain about one 14 transfer. 15 Now, with respect to our preference claims, the 16 question in the preference claim is whether the transfer is 17 wrongful. That's the question. That's the very transfer. 18 So the connection between the wrongful act and the 19 purposeful availment is entirely direct. 20 With respect to the set off argument, under 21 553(a)(3) the question that we're -- if they defend on the 22 basis of a set-off, we will respond by saying that the 23 transfer was done for the purpose of creating set off, which 24 means they can't set off against that debt. And again, 25 that's the transfer that was done entirely in New York.

Two other points, Your Honor, I think. We cite these in our papers, but I'm not sure that there's any confusion left about the question of extraterritoriality reach, but if there is, we cite in our papers the legislative history where Congress expressly stated its addition to add wherever located, those very words, made clear that a trustee in bankruptcy is vested with the title of the bankrupt in property which is located without, as well as within, the United States. And that's cited in our brief at page 24.

The last point, I don't -- there seemed to be a suggestion, and I thought it was odd for two Bahraini banks to be making the suggestion, but that these contracts -- Your Honor knows what these contracts are. They are a Sharia compliant way of lending money. There's a series of transactions, a commodities transactions to generate a profit, predetermined profit amount for the purpose of substituting for what otherwise would be interest.

Now, if the suggestion is that the consequence — the consequential acts with respect to a lending transaction like that structured in a Sharia compliant way is really the commodities transactions that occur outside, and it's not simply a lending arrangement between parties, where the loan was made in the United States, and where the very document signed by them calls for the loan to be repaid in the United States, that the consequential acts with respect to that transaction are the underlying commodities trades, that would be an extraordinary decision with respect to a Sharia compliant facility.

Because I think it would blow the thing out of the water, because Sharia -- the purpose of this is to avoid having a contract that pays interest. And instead, they substitute a series of transactions that are not meaningfully at risk for the purpose of creating a profit margin, so that they can pay the equivalent of interest.

And I think it's astonishing to say that the nexus, the corpus, the substance of this transaction is anything other than the lending and the repaying with interest or profit because it's Sharia compliant. That's just wrong.

And I think Your Honor -- Your Honor knows that from the history of this case, that the functional events in this transaction were the lending of money and the repayment of money, both of which were called for to occur in New York, the first of which occurred in New York, the second of which didn't occur because of their breach.

There's no question on those facts, Your Honor, that there's -- on those allegations, which are assumed to be true, that there is jurisdiction here. So we'd ask the Court to dismiss -- to deny the motion to dismiss. Thank

Page 141 1 you very much for all of your time today. 2 THE COURT: Thank you. 3 MR. LEBLANC: I've spent a lot of time talking to 4 you and I apologize. 5 THE COURT: That's all right. 6 MS. ADLER: Your Honor, I just want to point out 7 that the legislative history argument was made and rejected 8 in Maxwell, and that I believe on a motion to dismiss, with 9 undisputed facts it is wholly inappropriate for counsel to 10 be testifying about the nature of the transaction, much 11 less, you know, has he been qualified as an expert. THE COURT: Well, the record is what it is. I'll 12 13 consider what I'm supposed to consider, and take it from 14 there. 15 MS. ADLER: Thank you, Your Honor. 16 THE COURT: All right. I'd like to thank the 17 parties for their excellent arguments and very good 18 briefing, even though you disagree on many, many things. 19 will take it under advisement and I can't promise that I 20 won't have a follow-up question, I won't let pride stand in 21 the way of trying to get it right, to the extent I do, 22 rather than whistle in the dark and issue something that has both sides scratching their heads, I reserve the right to 23 24 call you up and ask a follow-up question or two in an 25 appropriate setting. But hopefully it won't come to that,

1	and thank you again for your efforts.
2	MS. ADLER: Thank you very much, Your Honor.
3	MR. LEBLANC: Thank you, Your Honor.

UNITED STATES BANKRUPTCY JUDGE

Before the Court are motions to dismiss filed by Bahrain Islamic Bank ("BisB") and Tadhamon Capital B.S.C. ("Tadhamon," and together with BisB, the "Defendants"), respectively, in the above-captioned adversary proceedings. The adversary proceedings were brought by the official committee of unsecured creditors for the above-captioned chapter 11 cases (the "Committee"). The cases seek the turnover of funds invested by the Debtor Arcapita Bank—a Bahraini investment bank—with the Defendants—two Bahraini entities—just before the bankruptcy filing. Because the motions in the two cases raise the same issues, the Court will address them together. The Defendants make several arguments for dismissal, including that the Court lacks personal jurisdiction over the Defendants. For the reasons set forth below, the motions are granted for lack of personal jurisdiction.

BACKGROUND

Arcapita Bank B.S.C.(c) ("Arcapita"), one of the above-captioned reorganized debtors, is licensed as an Islamic wholesale bank by the Central Bank of Bahrain. BisB Compl. ¶ 12; Tadhamon Compl. ¶ 12. Headquartered in Bahrain, Arcapita is operated as an investment bank and is a global manager of Shari'ah compliant alternative investments. BisB Compl. ¶ 12; Tadhamon Compl. ¶ 12. Prior to its bankruptcy filing, Arcapita and its affiliates employed 268 people and, together with the debtors and their non-debtor subsidiaries, maintained offices in Bahrain, Atlanta, London, Hong Kong and Singapore. BisB Compl. ¶ 12; Tadhamon Compl. ¶ 12.

Defendant BisB is an Islamic commercial bank headquartered in Bahrain. BisB Compl. ¶
13. BisB maintains correspondent bank accounts in the United States with Deutsche Bank, Standard Chartered Bank and JP Morgan Chase Bank. BisB Compl. ¶ 14. As required by the Patriot Act, BisB has designated an agent for service of process in the United States in connection with these accounts. BisB Compl. ¶14. BisB also participates in the Clearing House Interbank Payments System, located in New York. BisB Compl. ¶14.

Defendant Tadhamon is a Bahraini corporation and a subsidiary of Tadhamon International Islamic Bank ("TIIB"), a Yemeni bank that offers Islamic banking and investment services to customers in Yemen and abroad. Tadhamon Compl. ¶ 13. Tadhamon serves as the investment arm of TIIB. Tadhamon Compl. ¶ 13. While Tadhamon does not maintain any correspondent accounts in the United States, see Hr'g Tr. 62:19-21 (March 19, 2014), TIIB has correspondent bank accounts in the United States with Mashreq Bank and the Bank of New York Mellon. Tadhamon Compl. ¶14. As required by the Patriot Act, TIIB has designated an agent for service of process in the United States in connection with each of these accounts and also participates in the Clearing House Interbank Payments System in New York. Tadhamon Compl. ¶14.

According to the Defendants, they do not and have never maintained offices, staff or telephone numbers in the United States. Decl. of Waleed Rashdan ¶ 2 [Tadhamon ECF No. 8]; Decl. of Mohammed Ebraim Mohammed ¶ 2 [BisB ECF No. 8]. The Defendants maintain that they do not do business in the United States, do not solicit business or clients in the United States and do not advertise in the United States. Rashdan Decl. ¶ 2; Mohammed Decl. ¶ 2. Neither Defendant has filed a proof of claim in the debtors' cases.

A. The Placements

A few days prior to its bankruptcy filing, Arcapita made several discrete short-term debt investments through the Defendants (the "Placements"). BisB Compl. ¶¶ 27, 30; Tadhamon Compl. ¶¶ 27, 31. The Placements were made under two separate investment agreements between Arcapita and each of the Defendants (the "Placement Agreements"). Id.¹ Both of the Placement Agreements were negotiated and signed in Bahrain and provided that the laws of the Kingdom of Bahrain govern, except to the extent that such laws conflicted with the principles of Islamic Shari'ah, in which case Shari'ah law would prevail. Rashdan Decl. ¶ 13 & Ex. A, § 7.1; Mohammed Decl. ¶ 5 & Ex. A § 12.

Under the terms of the Placement Agreements, Arcapita appointed the Defendants to serve as its agent in the purchase of the Placement investments on Arcapita's behalf. BisB Compl. ¶¶ 23-24; Tadhamon Compl. ¶¶ 22, 24. The Defendants were subsequently obligated to repurchase the Placements from Arcapita on a deferred payment basis for an amount equal to the original investment, plus an agreed-upon return (the "Placement Proceeds"). BisB Compl. ¶¶ 2, 24; Tadhamon Compl. ¶ 2, 24. The Defendants were to transfer the Placement Proceeds to Arcapita and BisB entered into their Placement Agreement on July 10, 2003. BisB Compl. ¶ 23. Arcapita made at least five previous investments with BisB under the terms of the Placement Agreement in the two years before the investments here were made. BisB Compl. ¶ 26. These previous transfers are not relied on by the Committee as a basis for personal jurisdiction. Indeed, the Committee states that "Arcapita did not enter into placement transactions with [BisB] as part of the ordinary course of business." BisB Compl. ¶ 25. Accordingly, the Court does not address these previous transfers as part of its jurisdictional analysis.

Arcapita and Tadhamon entered into their Placement Agreement on March 15, 2012. Tadhamon Compl. ¶¶ 22-23. The Committee does not allege that Arcapita had placed any investments with Tadhamon prior to the transactions in question. Tadhamon Compl. ¶¶ 22-23.

Consistent with these Placement Agreements, Arcapita entered into a Placement with BisB in the amount of $10 million on March 14, 2012 (the "BisB Placement"). BisB Compl. ¶ 27. To execute the BisB Placement, Arcapita transferred funds from its account at JP Morgan Chase Bank in New York to the correspondent bank account maintained by BisB at JP Morgan Chase Bank in New York. BisB Compl. ¶ 15. The Committee alleges that this transfer took place at the direction of BisB. BisB Compl. ¶¶ 15, 28. On the same day as the transfer, BisB purchased the commodities for Arcapita through a London broker. Mohammed Decl. ¶ 10.

Arcapita entered into two Placements with Tadhamon on March 15, 2012, each for $10 million (the "Tadhamon Placements"). Tadhamon Compl. ¶ 27. To execute the Tadhamon Placements, Arcapita transferred funds from its account at JP Morgan Chase Bank in New York to an account at HSBC Bank in New York. Tadhamon Compl. ¶ 28. The HSBC account was a correspondent bank account maintained by Khaleeji Commercial Bank B.S.C., Tadhamon's bank in Bahrain. Rashdan Decl. ¶ 7. The funds were then immediately transferred from the HSBC account to an account held by Tadhamon at Khaleeji Commercial Bank in Bahrain. Tadhamon Compl. ¶ 28; Rashdan Decl. ¶ 7. The Committee asserts that the HSBC account was designated by Tadhamon as the account to which the funds were to be transferred. Tadhamon Compl. ¶ 28.

B. Bankruptcy Case

Less than a month after these Placements, Arcapita filed for protection under Chapter 11 of the Bankruptcy Code. On April 5, 2012, the U.S. Trustee appointed an official committee of unsecured creditors pursuant to Section 1102(a) of the Bankruptcy Code (the "Committee" or the "Plaintiff"). All of the Placements matured within a month after Arcapita's bankruptcy filing.<sup>2</sup>

Both Defendants, however, failed to deliver the Placement Proceeds to Arcapita. BisB Compl.
¶¶ 32, 34; Tadhamon Compl. ¶¶ 35, 38. Instead, the Defendants informed Arcapita that, under Bahraini law, they were setting off the Placement Proceeds against amounts owed to them by Arcapita. BisB Compl. ¶ 34; Tadhamon Compl. ¶ 38.<sup>3</sup> In December 2012, Tadhamon returned to Arcapita the portion of the Placement Proceeds that exceeded its purported setoff. Tadhamon Compl. ¶40. The Committee alleges that the current outstanding balance of Placement Proceeds due and owing to Arcapita is $10,002,292.00 from BisB and $18,480,269.00 from Tadhamon. BisB Compl. ¶ 36; Tadhamon Compl. ¶ 40.

In June 2013, the Court confirmed the proposed plan of reorganization in Arcapita's bankruptcy. See Findings of Fact, Conclusions of Law, and Order Confirming the Second Amended Joint Plan of Reorganization of Arcapita Bank B.S.C.(c) and Related Debtors With Respect to Each Debtor Other Than Falcon Gas Storage Company, Inc. Under Chapter 11 of the Bankruptcy Code [ECF No. 1262]. Later that summer, the Court entered the Order Granting Committee's Motion for Leave, Standing and Authority to Prosecute Avoidance Claims [ECF No. 1411], which granted the Committee the authority to pursue the claims asserted here against the Defendants. The Committee subsequently brought these cases against the Defendants for breach of contract, turnover, the avoidance of a preferential transfer, violation of the automatic

On March 28, 2012 and April 15, 2012, respectively, Arcapita and Tadhamon reinvested the Tadhamon Placements for an additional term, resulting in new maturity dates of April 30, 2012 and May 16, 2012. Tadhamon Compl. ¶ 36.

Based on Arcapita's pre-existing relationship with the Defendants, Arcapita already owed millions in unmatured debt to each of the Defendants at the time of the Placements. Arcapita owed $9,774,096.15 to BisB as a result of investments that BisB made with Arcapita on December 1, 2011. BisB Compl. ¶¶ 3, 16-20. stay, and claims disallowance. BisB Compl. ¶ 1; Tadhamon Compl. ¶ 1. The Committee seeks, among other things, to compel the Defendants to comply with their obligations under the Placement Agreements by turning over the Placement Proceeds. Alternatively, the Committee seeks to have the Placements avoided and recover the funds as an improper payment of antecedent debts under Sections 547(b) and 550 of the Bankruptcy Code. #### DISCUSSION

A. The Doctrine of Personal Jurisdiction

Fed. R. Civ. P. 12(b)(2), incorporated herein by Bankruptcy Rule 7012(b), provides for dismissal of a case for lack of personal jurisdiction. See Fed. R. Bankr. P. 7012(b). To survive a Rule 12(b)(2) motion, a party must make a prima facie showing that jurisdiction exists. See O'Neill v. Asat Trust Reg. (In re Terrorist Attacks on September 11, 2001), 714 F.3d 659, 673 (2d Cir. 2013) (citing Penguin Grp. (USA) Inc. v. Am. Buddha, 609 F.3d 30, 34 (2d Cir. 2010)). This "must include an averment of facts that, if credited by the ultimate trier of fact, would suffice to establish jurisdiction over the defendant." In re Terrorist Attacks, 714 F.3d at 673 (quoting Chloé v. Queen Bee of Beverly Hills, LLC, 616 F.3d 158, 163 (2d Cir. 2010)). "[A] court may consider materials outside the pleadings, but must credit plaintiffs' averments of jurisdictional facts as true." In re Stillwater Capital Partners Inc. Litig., 851 F. Supp. 2d 556, 566-67 (S.D.N.Y. 2012).

In a Rule 12(b)(2) motion, all pleadings and affidavits are to be construed in a light most favorable to the plaintiff and all doubts resolved in the plaintiff's favor. *See In re Terrorist*Attacks, 714 F.3d at 673 (citing Penguin Grp., 609 F.3d at 34). This is "notwithstanding a controverting presentation by the moving party." In re Stillwater Capital, 851 F. Supp. 2d at 567

(quoting A.I. Trade Fin., Inc. v. Petra Bank, 989 F.2d 76, 79-80 (2d Cir. 1993)). But where a "defendant rebuts plaintiffs' unsupported allegations with direct, highly specific, testimonial evidence regarding a fact essential to jurisdiction — and plaintiffs do not counter that evidence — the allegation may be deemed refuted." In re Stillwater Capital, 851 F. Supp. 2d at 567 (quoting Schenker v. Assicurazioni Generali S.p.A., Consol., 2002 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 12845, at *12 (S.D.N.Y. July 15, 2002)). Furthermore, "in determining whether a plaintiff has met [its] burden, [a court] will not draw argumentative inferences in the plaintiff's favor . . . nor must [it] accept as true a legal conclusion couched as a factual allegation." In re Terrorist Attacks, 714 F.3d at 673.

A court must conduct a two-part inquiry to determine whether personal jurisdiction exists over a defendant. First, the court needs to examine whether the defendant has "the requisite minimum contacts with the United States at large." Picard v. Chais (In re Bernard L. Madoff Inv. Sec. LLC), 440 B.R. 274, 278 (Bankr. S.D.N.Y. 2010) (citing Cruisephone, Inc. v. Cruise Ships Catering & Servs., N.V. (In re Cruisephone, Inc.), 278 B.R. 325, 331 (Bankr. E.D.N.Y. 2002)). If such contacts are found to exist, the court must then determine the reasonableness of exercising personal jurisdiction over the defendant under the circumstances and whether doing so would "offend 'traditional notions of fair play and substantial justice." Sec. Investor Prot. Corp. v. Bernard L. Madoff Inv. Sec., LLC, 460 B.R. 106, 117 (Bankr. S.D.N.Y. 2011) (quoting Asahi Metal Indus. Co., Ltd. v. Super. Ct. Cal., 480 U.S. 102, 113 (1987) (internal quotations omitted); Metro. Life Ins. Co. v. Robertson-Ceco Corp., 84 F.3d 560, 567 (2d Cir.1996)); Bank Brussels Lambert v. Fiddler Gonzalez & Rodriguez, 305 F.3d 120, 129 (2d Cir. 2002) ("Where a plaintiff makes the threshold showing of the minimum contacts required for the first test, a defendant must present a compelling case that the present of some other considerations would render jurisdiction unreasonable.") (internal quotations omitted).

When examining the first question of "minimum contacts," courts differentiate between "specific" and "general" personal jurisdiction. See In re Terrorist Attacks, 714 F.3d at 673.

Either is adequate to satisfy the minimum contacts requirement of the Due Process Clause. See id. at 674 (citing Helicopteros Nacionales de Colombia, S.A. v. Hall, 466 U.S. 408, 414-16 (1984)). Specific jurisdiction is established when a foreign defendant "'purposefully direct[s] his activities at residents of the forum' and . . . the underlying cause of action 'arise[s] out of or relate[s] to those activities.'" Madoff, 460 B.R. at 117 (quoting Burger King Corp. v. Rudzewicz, 471 U.S. 462, 472 (1985)); see also Bank Brussels Lambert, 305 F.3d at 127 ("Where the claim arises out of, or relates to, the defendant's contacts with the forum—i.e., specific jurisdiction—minimum contacts exist where the defendant 'purposefully availed' itself of the privilege of doing business in the forum and could foresee being 'haled into court' there.") (internal citations and quotations omitted).

In contrast, general jurisdiction "is based on the defendant's general business contacts with the forum . . . and permits a court to exercise its power in a case where the subject matter of the suit is unrelated to those contacts." In re Terrorist Attacks, 714 F.3d at 674 (quoting Metro. Life Ins. Co., 84 F.3d at 568; Helicopteros, 466 U.S. at 414-16 & nn.8-9). Since "general jurisdiction is not related to the events giving rise to the suit, . . . courts impose a more stringent minimum contacts test, requiring the plaintiff to demonstrate the defendant's 'continuous and systematic general business contacts." In re Terrorist Attacks, 714 F.3d at 674 (quoting Helicopteros, 466 U.S. at 416 & n. 9).

If minimum contacts are present, a court must then turn to the second question of whether the exercise of jurisdiction will "offend 'traditional notions of fair play and substantial justice."
Madoff Inv. Sec., 460 B.R. at 117 (quoting Asahi Metal Indus., 480 U.S. at 113; Metro. Life Ins.
Co., 84 F.3d at 567). In determining whether the assertion of jurisdiction is reasonable in a given case, courts will consider the following factors: "(1) the burden that the exercise of jurisdiction will impose on the defendant; (2) the interests of the forum state in adjudicating the case; (3) the plaintiff's interest in obtaining convenient and effective relief; (4) the interstate judicial system's interest in obtaining the most efficient resolution of the controversy; and (5) the shared interest of the states in furthering substantive social policies." Bank Brussels Lambert, 305 F.3d at 129 (internal citations and quotations omitted).

B. No Specific Jurisdiction Exists Over the Defendants

As to the first prong of the jurisdictional inquiry, the Defendants argue that their actions do not represent the necessary minimum contacts to comport with due process. They argue that because the transactions here took place between foreign entities under agreements negotiated, signed and performed in a foreign country and that the one-time use of correspondent accounts in New York to receive funds from Arcapita was not significant enough to impart jurisdiction. The Committee counters that the Defendants purposefully availed themselves of the benefits of the U.S. banking system by using New York correspondent accounts and that the Committee's underlying claims arise from or relate to the use of those accounts.<sup>4</sup>

Central to the Committee's jurisdictional arguments is the use of correspondent bank accounts, which are

The Committee states that it currently lacks the information necessary to determine whether the Defendants are subject to general jurisdiction, but reserves its right to assert such jurisdiction pending discovery. BisB Obj. 8 n.6; Tadhamon Obj. 8 n.6. The only question before the Court, therefore, is whether specific jurisdiction exists over the Defendants.

accounts in domestic banks held in the name of foreign financial institutions. Typically, foreign banks are unable to maintain branch offices in the United States and therefore maintain an account at a United States bank to effect dollar transactions. . . . Without correspondent banking . . . it would often be impossible for banks to provide comprehensive nationwide and international banking services—among them, the vital capability to transfer money by wire with amazing speed and accuracy across international boundaries.

Licci v. Lebanese Canadian Bank, SAL, 673 F.3d 50, 56 (2d Cir. 2012) (internal citations and quotations omitted). The mere existence of a correspondent account by itself is insufficient to establish minimum contacts over a foreign bank. See Tamam, 677 F. Supp. 2d at 727 (in the context of discussion on CPLR § 302(a)(1), stating that "courts in this district have routinely held that merely maintaining a New York correspondent bank account is insufficient to subject a foreign bank to personal jurisdiction.")<sup>5</sup> (collecting cases); Licci v. Lebanese Canadian Bank, SAL, 20 N.Y.3d 327, 336-38 (2012).<sup>6</sup> Rather, the issue is whether the Defendants' use of a correspondent account in these cases conveys specific jurisdiction upon them.

We begin with Tadhamon. Arcapita transferred the Tadhamon Placement funds to a correspondent bank account at HSBC Bank in New York that was maintained by Khaleeji Commercial Bank, which is Tadhamon's Bank in Bahrain. Tadhamon Compl. ¶28; Rashdan

Many of the cases cited by the parties and discussed in this decision involve personal jurisdiction under the New York long-arm statute – specifically the first prong of CPLR 302(a)(1) – which states that "a court may exercise personal jurisdiction over any non-domiciliary . . . who in person or through an agent . . . transacts any business within the state or contracts anywhere to supply goods or services in the state . . . ." NY CPLR § 302(a)(1). The Second Circuit has stated that "despite the fact that [S]ection 302(a)(1) of New York's long-arm statute and constitutional due process are not coextensive, and that personal jurisdiction permitted under the long-arm statute may theoretically be prohibited under due process analysis, we would expect such cases to be rare." Licci v. Lebanese Canadian Bank, SAL, 732 F.3d 161, 170 (2d Cir. 2013). It is not surprising, therefore, that the parties rely on such cases in their pleadings.

In connection with their maintenance of correspondent accounts in the United States, BisB and TIIB (Tadhamon's parent) have designated agents for service of process in the United States as required under the Patriot Act and participate in the Clearing House Interbank Payments System in New York. Tadhamon Compl. ¶ 14; BisB Compl. ¶ 14. But courts have held that such actions do not constitute the necessary minimum contacts to satisfy due process. "If these PATRIOT Act certifications were sufficient minimum contacts to satisfy due process, every foreign bank that opens a correspondent account in the United States would be subject to jurisdiction. Clearly, that is not the case. Moreover, the fact that these PATRIOT Act certifications require foreign banks to designate a proxy to accept service of process by the U.S. Government does not indicate that Defendants should reasonably foresee being haled into a U.S. court . . . ." Tamam v. Fransabank SAL, 677 F. Supp. 2d 720, 732 (S.D.N.Y. 2010).

Decl. ¶ 7. The funds were then transferred from the HSBC account to an account held by Tadhamon at Khaleeji in Bahrain. Tadhamon Compl. ¶ 28. It did not even maintain its own correspondent account, but instead used an account maintained in the United States by another bank. But Tadhamon's use of a third party's correspondent bank account is insufficient to establish specific jurisdiction. Minimum contacts will be found "where the defendant purposefully availed itself of the privilege of doing business in the forum and could foresee being haled into court there." Bank Brussels Lambert, 305 F.3d at 127 (internal citations and quotations omitted). Tadhamon made a conscious decision to forego maintenance of a correspondent account in the United States and has clearly not benefitted from the privilege of doing business here under these circumstances. If anything, Tadhamon has accepted the inconvenience caused by its lack of a correspondent account in the United States, and therefore arranged an alternate means of payment through a third party when transacting business in US currency. Thus, Tadhamon has not directed its activities towards residents of this forum in a way that supports personal jurisdiction. See Madoff, 460 B.R. at 117.

Unlike Tadhamon, the BisB Placement funds were transferred to BisB's own correspondent bank account at JP Morgan Chase Bank in New York. BisB Compl. ¶ 15.8 This one-time use of BisB's own correspondent bank account is a closer call than Tadhamon. But it too ultimately falls short given all the other facts here. The use of this correspondent bank account was neither the beginning nor the end of the Placement, but rather a transitory intermediate step. The transaction began with the negotiation and signing of the contract in

Even if one views Khaleeji as Tadhamon's agent, the use of this correspondent bank account does not provide a basis for personal jurisdiction for the same reasons discussed below as to BisB.

BisB maintains correspondent bank accounts in the United States at Deutsche Bank, Standard Chartered Bank and JP Morgan Chase Bank. BisB Compl. ¶ 14.

Bahrain between Bahraini parties. It ended with the funds being transferred out of the country the same day for investment. So while the use of the account is admittedly a contact, it is too weak to satisfy due process requirements. See Burger King, 471 U.S. at 475 ("[P]urposeful availment requirement ensures that a defendant will not be haled into a jurisdiction solely as a result of random, fortuitous, or attenuated contacts.") (internal citations and quotations omitted) (emphasis added).

The Committee raises several arguments in support of jurisdiction, but none are persuasive. The Committee first argues that the Defendants took sufficient affirmative steps by designating the correspondent accounts where Arcapita should transfer funds. BisB Compl. ¶ 28; Tadhamon Compl. ¶ 28. The Committee reasons that these actions amount to purposeful availment of the United States banking system. But this argument is undermined by the fact that it was Arcapita that actually transferred the funds to the correspondent accounts. BisB Compl. ¶ 28 ("To execute the Placement, Arcapita, at BIB's direction, transferred $10 million in funds from its account at JP Morgan Chase Bank in New York to BIB's account at JP Morgan Chase Bank in New York."); Tadhamon Compl. ¶ 28 ("To execute the Placements, Arcapita transferred a total of $20 million in funds from its account at JP Morgan Chase Bank in New York to an account designated by Tadhamon at HSBC Bank in New York.") As noted by the Supreme Court,

'[t]he unilateral activity of those who claim some relationship with a nonresident defendant cannot satisfy the requirement of contact with the forum State. The application of that rule will vary with the quality and nature of the defendant's activity, but it is essential in each case that there be some act by which the defendant purposefully avails itself of the privilege of conducting activities within the forum State, thus invoking the benefits and protections of its laws.'

Burger King, 471 U.S. at 474-75 (quoting Hanson v. Denckla, 357 U.S. 235, 253 (1958)). In any event, the mere knowing receipt of funds at a correspondent bank account is insufficient to establish jurisdiction. See, e.g., Rushaid v. Pictet & Cie, 2014 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3888, at *8 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. Aug. 26, 2014) ("While plaintiffs submitted documents showing that defendants knew of the third-party monetary transfers from a New York correspondent account for the benefit of the Pictet accounts, this alone does not constitute purposeful conduct. This passive receipt of funds do not constitute 'volitional acts' by defendants and, as such, defendants did not avail themselves of the privilege of conduction activities within the forum State, and thereby neglect to invoke the benefits and protections of its laws.") (internal citations and quotations omitted); Pramer S.C.A. v. Abaplus Int'l Corp., 907 N.Y.S.2d 154, 159 (1st Dept. 2010) ("[T]he mere payment into a New York account does not alone provide a basis for New York jurisdiction, especially when all aspects of the transaction occur out of state, absent more extensive New York banking relating to the transaction at issue.") (internal citations and quotations omitted).

The Committee further argues that the Defendants instructed Arcapita to transfer the funds to the correspondent accounts, providing Arcapita with the Swift codes<sup>9</sup> necessary to effectuate the transfer. See Rashdan Decl., Exs. B & C; Decl. of Nicholas A. Bassett, Exs. D & E [BisB ECF No. 15]. But such acts are not a substantial connection sufficient for jurisdiction. As the Supreme Court has counseled, specific jurisdiction is appropriate only where the contacts proximately result from actions by the defendant himself that create a 'substantial connection' with the forum State. Thus where the defendant 'deliberately' has engaged in significant activities within a State... or has created 'continuing obligations' between himself and residents of the forum, he manifestly has availed himself of the privilege of conducting business there, and

A SWIFT Code "[w]ithin the context of international payment transactions, is a code issued by the Society for Worldwide Interbank Financial Telecommunications (SWIFT) that enables banks worldwide to be identified without the need to specify an address or bank number. because his activities are shielded by "the benefits and protections" of the forum's laws it is presumptively not unreasonable to require him to submit to the burdens of litigation in that forum as well.

Burger King, 471 U.S. at 475-76 (internal citations and quotations omitted) (emphasis added). The Defendants' instructions to Arcapita to transfer the funds to a correspondent account held by a third party are the type of "attenuated" acts that do not qualify as the basis for specific jurisdiction. Burger King, 471 U.S. at 475. Without more, the Court finds that the Defendants use of this account is not a strong enough action on which to rest personal jurisdiction. <sup>10</sup>

And despite the use of the correspondent bank accounts, neither Defendant would have reasonably foreseen being haled into court in the United States. Neither maintains a presence in the United States. The Defendants do not and have never maintained offices, staff or telephone numbers in the United States. Rashdan Decl. ¶ 2; Mohammed Decl. ¶ 2. They do not do business in the United States, do not solicit business or clients in the United States and do not advertise in the United States. Rashdan Decl. ¶ 2; Mohammed Decl. ¶ 2. Indeed, these Placement Agreements were executed in Bahrain and provide that they are governed by the laws of Bahrain. Rashdan Decl. ¶ 5 & Ex. A, § 7.1; Mohammed Decl. ¶ 7 & Ex. A, § 12. Given all these facts, the Defendants would reasonably assume that any suit relating to the Placement Agreements would be in Bahrain under Bahraini law. Cf. Sec. Investor Prot. Corp. v. Bernard L. Madoff Inv. Sec., LLC, 460 B.R. 106, 117 (Bankr. S.D.N.Y. 2011) ("The Second Circuit has indicated that entering into a contract with a New York choice of law clause is 'a significant factor in a personal jurisdiction analysis because the parties . . . invoke the benefits and protections of New York law.") (quoting Sunward Elec., Inc. v. McDonald, 362 F.3d 17, 22-23

The Defendants claim that the correspondent accounts were used to accommodate Arcapita's desire to transfer the funds in U.S. dollars, but there is no evidence of this in the record. See Tadhamon Reply at 1-2; Hr'g Tr. 62:8-16 (March 19, 2014). The Court does not need to reach that issue for purposes of this decision.

(2d Cir. 2004); AIG Fin. Prod. Corp. v. Public Util. Dist. No. 1 of Snohomish Cnty., Wash., 673 F. Supp. 2d 354, 364 (S.D.N.Y. 2009)); see also Budget Blinds, Inc. v. White, 536 F.3d 244, 261 (3d Cir. 2008) ("[A] choice-of-law provision 'standing alone would be insufficient to confer jurisdiction,' but combined with other facts, it may reinforce a party's 'deliberate affiliation with the forum State and the reasonable foreseeability of possible litigation there.'") (quoting Burger King, 471 U.S. at 482); Atlantic Fin. Fed. v. Bruno, 698 F. Supp. 568, 573 (E.D. Pa. 1988) ("A choice of law provision is only a factor to show whether defendants could reasonably foresee that their acts would have effect in Pennsylvania; it does not itself vest jurisdiction.").<sup>11</sup>

The Committee relies most heavily on three cases, but all of them are distinguishable. While courts in each of the three cases found personal jurisdiction based on the use of an account, the cases all involved a greater quality of contact with the United States than are present here. The first of these cases, Licci v. Lebanese Canadian Bank, SAL, 20 N.Y.3d 327 (2012), involved the use of a correspondent bank account to make dozens of international transfers. In the case, plaintiffs from the United States, Canada and Israel brought suit against Lebanese Canadian Bank ("LCB") for injuries sustained in rocket attacks by Hisballah. Id. at 330. The plaintiffs alleged that LCB had assisted Hizballah in committing the attacks by facilitating international monetary transactions through the Shahid Foundation, an entity that had been identified as the "financial arm" of Hizballah. Id. at 331. LCB's sole point of contact with the United States was a correspondent bank account that it maintained with American Express Bank in New York. Id. at 332. The plaintiffs alleged, in part, that LCB had used this account to make dozens of international wire transfers on behalf of Shahid. See id. Concluding that the case presented issues not previously addressed by New York state courts, the Second Circuit certified questions to the New York Court of Appeals as to whether a foreign bank's maintenance and use of a correspondent bank account at a New York financial institution established personal jurisdiction under the New York long-arm statute. See Licci v. Lebanese Canadian Bank, SAL, 673 F.3d 50, 62-63, 66, 74 (2d Cir. 2012).

In answering these certified questions, the New York Court of Appeals noted that a court must "closely examine the defendant's contacts for their quality," noting that in other cases, a focus on the nature and extent of a defendant's involvement in the deposit of funds in a correspondent account was "essentially adventitious." Licci, 20 N.Y.3d at 338. The court stated that such an analysis "may be complicated by the nature of inter-bank activity, especially given the widespread use of correspondent accounts nominally in New York to facilitate the flow of money worldwide, often for transactions that otherwise have no other connection to New York, or indeed the United States." Id. Ultimately, the court found that "a foreign bank's repeated use of a correspondent account in New York on behalf of a client – in effect, a 'course of dealing' – show[s] purposeful availment of New York's dependable and transparent banking system, the dollar as a stable and fungible currency, and the predictable jurisdictional and commercial law of New York and the United States." Id. at 339. The New York Court of Appeals then found that the plaintiffs' claims arose from the bank's transaction of business in New York because LCB's use of a "New York account 'dozens' of times indicate[d] desirability and a lack of coincidence." Id. at 340.

After receiving this guidance from the New York Court of Appeals, the Second Circuit addressed whether the exercise of personal jurisdiction over LCB was consistent with constitutional due process. The Second Circuit focused on the connection between the wire transfers and the alleged unlawful conduct, noting that the transfers were "a part of the principal wrong at which the plaintiffs' lawsuit is directed." Licci, 732 F.3d at 170. While reiterating that the "mere maintenance" of a correspondent account was not enough to support personal jurisdiction, the Second Circuit stated that in connection with this particular jurisdictional controversy – a lawsuit seeking redress for the allegedly unlawful provision of banking services for which the wire transfers are a part – allegations of LCB's repeated, intentional execution of U.S.-dollar-denominated wire transfers on behalf of Sahid, in order to further Hisballah's terrorist goals, are sufficient.

Id. at 171. Like the New York Court of Appeals, the Second Circuit focused on the fact that the transfers in Licci were recurring, stating that "the plaintiffs allege wire transfers through AmEx that numbered in the dozens and totaled several million dollars, so it cannot be said that LCB's contacts with New York were 'random, isolated, or fortuitous.'" Id. The Second Circuit ultimately found that "the selection and repeated use of New York's banking system, as an instrument for accomplishing the alleged wrongs for which the plaintiffs seek redress, constitutes 'purposeful availment of the privilege of doing business in New York,' . . . so as to permit the subjecting of LCB to specific jurisdiction within the Southern District of New York consistent with due process requirements." Id. at 170-71 (quoting Bank Brussels Lambert, 305 F.3d at 127). Unlike the Defendants' conduct here, therefore, the defendant in Licci repeatedly used a correspondent account which was integrally related to the unlawful conduct at issue in the lawsuit.

The Committee's second case fails for similar reasons. In Dale v. Banque SCS Alliance S.A., 2005 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 20967 (S.D.N.Y. September 22, 2005), the court was confronted with allegations of RICO violations against a Swiss corporation. The plaintiff insurance companies alleged that the defendant had assisted a third party in defrauding them. The illegally obtained funds were laundered through a series of fraudulent wire transfers to and from the defendant's four correspondent bank account in New York and other accounts maintained outside of New York. The court preliminarily noted that under CPLR § 302(a)(1), "[a] single transaction would be sufficient to fulfill this requirement, so long as the relevant cause of action also arises from that transaction." Id. at *11 (quoting Bank Brussels Lambert v. Fiddler Gonzalez & Rodriguez, 171 F.3d 779, 787 (2d Cir. 1999)). In fact, the defendant maintained several correspondent bank accounts in New York that were used to effect a number of the unlawful funds transfers. See Dale, 2005 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 20967, at *12. The court therefore found that the complaint stated a prima facie case for personal jurisdiction under the New York long-arm statute, C.P.L.R. § 302(a)(1).

Finally, the Committee cites to the single use of a correspondent account to sustain personal jurisdiction in Correspondent Services Corp. v. J.V.W. Investments Ltd., 120 F. Supp. 2d 401 (S.D.N.Y. 2000). In that case, the third-party plaintiff—a Dominican corporation—sought to recover an investment that had been transferred to the New York correspondent account of the third-party defendant—a Bahamian bank. The defendant argued that the court did not have personal jurisdiction under the New York long-arm statute, as it was a foreign defendant without contacts, offices, telephone listings or personnel in New York. In analyzing whether the third-party defendant was transacting business in the jurisdiction, the court recognized that "even a single action within New York is sufficient to confer jurisdiction under § 302(a) if it has a sufficient nexus with the cause of action." Id. at 404 (emphasis added). In looking at the totality of the circumstances, the court noted that the defendant acknowledged that it held securities accounts at a New York brokerage firm which it used to "facilitate international financial transactions for itself and for its clients, including the . . . mutual fund purchases . . .

requested on behalf of [the third party plaintiff] JVW." Id. at 404. The court found that not only did the defendant maintain an account in New York to facilitate international business transactions, but it also used the account for the purchase and delivery of the securities, with the unauthorized purchase being at the very root of the action in the case. Id. at 405. Thus, it concluded that "[t]he single purposeful act of transferring JVW's funds to New York constitutes the 'transaction of business' from which this cause of action directly arises." Id. at 404-05 (emphasis added). As such, the jurisdictional conclusion in Correspondent Services was based upon the plaintiff's fraud claim directly arising from the defendant's unauthorized purchase of the stock in the context of the defendant's general use of its New York accounts for itself and various clients. By contrast, the money here passed through these correspondent bank accounts once, but only as part of a transaction that began in Bahrain between Bahraini parties under a Bahraini contract and that ended overseas. See Pramer SCA, 907 N.Y.S.2d at 159 (mere payment into New York account insufficient where all aspects of transaction occurred out of state).

Moreover, the use of the accounts was not central to the alleged wrong. For example, the Committee has alleged causes of action for breach of contract and the turnover of assets under Sections 541, 542 and 550 and violation of the automatic stay under Section 362, all of which are based upon the alleged setoff by the Defendants and their failure to transfer the Placement Proceeds to Arcapita upon the maturity dates. Thus, the alleged unlawful action was the Defendants' subsequent refusal to return money to Arcapita; it was not the Defendants' original receipt of these transfers under the Placement Agreements, an act which no party has alleged was improper. Thus, the one-off use of the correspondent account by BisB is unrelated to the setoff issue, let alone central to its adjudication.<sup>12</sup>

C. Jurisdictional Discovery Is Not Appropriate

The Committee states that it lacks sufficient information to determine whether the Defendants are subject to the general jurisdiction of this Court, but reserves the right to assert such jurisdiction pending discovery. It initially requested discovery to find "(i) additional facts which further demonstrate that significant and numerous aspects of the Transfers involved contacts with the United States and (ii) additional contacts [the Defendant] has or has had with New York or elsewhere in the United States independent of those that are the subject matter of this lawsuit, which would subject it to the general jurisdiction of this Court." Tadhamon Obj. at 18; see BisB Obj. at 17. But the Committee offered no information to support their contention that jurisdictional discovery would yield evidence as to personal jurisdiction. The Committee subsequently narrowed its discovery request, stating that "we should be permitted to take discovery to understand the use of correspondent bank accounts in the United States, because to the extent that it's dozens and dozens of times, the Court has no evidence before it whatsoever." Hr'g Tr. 106:1-5, March 19, 2014. This request would be inapplicable to specific jurisdiction, due to a lack of connection with the transactions at issue in this case.

Additionally, the Committee has not shown enough to make such discovery relevant on the issue of general jurisdiction. "At the jurisdictional stage, '... courts enjoy broad discretion in deciding whether to order discovery." Tymoshenko v. Firtash, 2013 WL 1234943, at *7 (S.D.N.Y. March 27, 2013) (quoting In re Terrorist Attacks on September 11, 2001, 349 F. Supp.

The Committee also asserts a cause of action for a preferential transfer under Sections 547 and 550, and one under Section 502(d), but the use of the correspondent account is not the actionable conduct in and of itself. Rather, the use of the correspondent account only gave rise to a claim due to the debtors' bankruptcy filing, assuming that United States law would apply to the dispute regarding the holdback of funds.

2d 765, 811 (S.D.N.Y. 2005), aff'd, 538 F.3d 71 (2d Cir. 2008)). While the failure to allege a prima facie case for jurisdiction is not necessarily a bar to jurisdictional discovery, courts have generally been unwilling to grant additional discovery on jurisdictional issues in such circumstances. See Sikhs for Justice v. Nath, 893 F. Supp. 2d 598, 609 (S.D.N.Y. 2012); see also Licci v. American Exp. Bank Ltd., 704 F. Supp. 2d 403, 408 (S.D.N.Y. 2010); Ehrenfeld v. Mahfouz, 489 F.3d 542, 550 n.6 (2d Cir. 2007); Langenberg v. Sofair, 2006 WL 2628348, at *5 (S.D.N.Y. Sept. 11, 2006). In the Second Circuit, courts "have allowed jurisdictional discovery where a plaintiff has made 'a sufficient start toward establishing personal jurisdiction." Hollenbeck v. Comeg, Inc., 2007 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 63547, at *8 (N.D.N.Y. Aug. 28, 2007) (quoting Uebler v. Boss Media, 363 F. Supp.2d 499, 506 (E.D.N.Y. 2005)); see also Smit v. Isiklar Holding A.S., 354 F. Supp. 2d 260, 263 (S.D.N.Y. 2005) ("[A] court may order limited discovery targeted at the missing jurisdictional elements, if plaintiff has shown that such an exercise would serve to fill any holes in its showing."). A party cannot base their request on mere "speculations or hopes . . . that further connections to [the forum] will come to light in discovery' . . . ." Firtash, 2013 WL 1234943, at *7 (quoting Rosenberg v. PK Graphics, 2004 WL 1057621, at *1 (S.D.N.Y. May 10, 2004)).

The need for discovery is also undermined by the declarations supplied by the Defendants stating that they do not and have never maintained offices, staff or telephone numbers in the United States. Rashdan Decl. ¶ 2; Mohammed Decl. ¶ 2. They state that they do not do business in the United States, do not solicit business or clients in the United States and do not advertise in the United States. Rashdan Decl. ¶ 2; Mohammed Decl. ¶ 2. These additional

The Committee notes that these declarations do not address accounts held in the United States and the frequency of their usage. But the Committee cites no cases holding that use of a correspondent account is enough to confer general jurisdiction and the case law seems to suggest the opposite. See In re Terrorist Attacks, 714 F.3d at 681 (concluding that "the alleged use of correspondent bank accounts and the maintenance of a website that allows facts before the Court only confirm that the requested jurisdictional discovery is inappropriate. See A.W.L.I. Group, Inc. v. Amber Freight Shipping Lines, 828 F. Supp. 2d 557, 575 (E.D.N.Y. 2011) ("[J]urisdictional discovery is not permitted where, as here, the defendant submits an affidavit that provides all the necessary facts and answers all the questions regarding jurisdiction.")

CONCLUSION

For the reasons stated above, the Court finds that it lacks personal jurisdiction over the Defendants due to an absence of minimum contacts with the jurisdiction. Accordingly, it is unnecessary to reach the other grounds for dismissal raised by the Defendants.<sup>14</sup> The Defendants should settle an order on three days' notice.

account holders to manage their accounts are insufficient to support the exercise of general personal jurisdiction" against foreign defendants.)

Thus, the Court does not address the Defendants' arguments for dismissal based on international comity and the presumption against extraterritorial application of United States law. See Ruhrgas AG v. Marathon Oil Co., 526 U.S. 574, 584 (1999) ("Personal jurisdiction . . . is an essential element of the jurisdiction of a . . . court, without which the court is powerless to proceed to an adjudication."). But those alternative arguments for dismissal raise serious concerns about the Committee's claims here. See In re Maxwell Commc'n. Corp., 93 F.3d 1036 (2d Cir. 1996) (discussing whether pre-petition transfers by the debtor to certain banks should be governed by United States bankruptcy law before an American bankruptcy court or should proceed overseas and concluding that international comity supported deferring to the courts and laws of England); see also Sec. Investor Prot. Corp. v. Bernard L. Madoff Inv. Sec. LLC, 513 B.R. 222 (S.D.N.Y. 2014).
